PRESIDENT HUERTA ORDERS BLOCKADE OF PORT TAMPICO

Admiral Badger Reported to Navy Department Late Last Night

NOTES FROM HUERTA

Sent to Nations Advising of Blockade

All Foreign Legations at Mexico City Told of Order From Huerta for the Blockade—United States Notified.

Washington, June 6.—Rear Admiral Badger reported at 11:25 tonight that he had been advised by the Tacoma that the Mexican gunboats Zaragoza and Bravo sailed from Puerto Mexico at 6 P. M.

How far the decision of the Washington government to see to it that Tampico is kept an open port, will go toward preventing interference with the landing of arms for the Mexican Constitutionalists, no official would discuss tonight. The Cuban steamer Antilla with a cargo of war munitions, is due at Tampico Wednesday, the Federal gunboats Bravo and Zaragoza reported leaving Puerto Mexico tonight by Admiral Badger should arrive there Monday.

Administration officials have given consideration to the possible effect suppression of the proposed blockade may have on the mediation conference at Niagara Falls and opinion on the subject is said to be sharply divided.

"No orders will be issued tonight," was the only comment of Secretary Daniels.

Officials at the Navy Department took it for granted that the gunboats were bound for Tampico to attempt to establish the blockade of that port ordered by Gen. Huerta. An official bulletin issued on receipt of Admiral Badger's dispatch said:

"If their destination is Tampico, they probably will arrive at that port early Monday morning."

It also was stated that department officials expected the Cuban steamer Antilla, which is carrying a cargo of arms for the Constitutionalist garrison, would arrive at Tampico early Wednesday morning.

The Washington government regards Tampico as an open port and it is known that Admiral Badger was advised recently that it was desired that there be no interference with commerce there. Whether this will result in suppression of the blockade, particularly so far as the Antilla and her contraband cargo is concerned, no representative of the government would discuss tonight.

Preparing for Blockade.

Vera Cruz, June 6.—Late advices from Puerto Mexico reported that two Mexican gunboats had called there and presumably were preparing to carry out President Huerta's blockade decree against Tampico. The steamer Antilla with a large shipment of arms and ammunition for the Constitutionalists is approaching that port. Rear Admiral Badger has instructed the commanders of the United States gunboats Paducah and Sacramento, off Puerto Mexico to follow and not lose sight of the Mexican warships if they leave the harbor.

The admiral's orders, however, are only to keep the ships under observation and not to interfere. The fleet orders today indicated the possibility that the gunboat Des Moines is being held in readiness to proceed for Tampico, it being stated that "the Des Moines possibly may leave Vera Cruz in the near future for a destination unknown."

Brig. Gen. Funston today said that reports had reached him that the commanders of the Huerta gunboats intended to surrender their ships to the Constitutionalists at Tampico when they reached that port. He added, however, that navy officers and all who knew the gunboat commanders scouted such an idea, believing they would remain loyal to Huerta.

No train has reached here from the capital in the last 24 hours. The Federal outposts say that the delay has been caused by a wreck.

Plan Bombardment of Port.

Tampico, June 5.—By way of Brownsville, Tex., June 6.—Official certification was sent today to Consul Clarence A. Miller by Governor Luis Caballero that he had received information of the intention of the Federal war vessels Zaragoza and Bravo to come to Tampico for the purpose of bombarding or blockading the port.

The Constitutionalists have made all arrangements for the defense of the city.

It is not yet known what steps are to be taken to drive off the gunboats should they make an effort to blockade the port. No vessels adopted to such purpose are at present available for the Constitutionalists.

The American gunboat Dolphin left today for Vera Cruz in pursuance of orders from Washington on account of the serious outbreak of malaria among the crew. Rear Admiral Mayo transferred his flag to the monitor Ozark.

Note to Nations.

Mexico City, June 6.—The foreign office sent a note to the legations this afternoon notifying them that the port of Tampico had been blockaded by order of President Huerta. The United States government was also notified through the Spanish minister at Washington.

LETTERS ARE READ IN DIVORCE CASE

Madame Schumann-Heink is Threatened With Damage Suit.

BY THE CO-RESPONDENT

Entire Session of Yesterday's Trial of Famous Singer's Suit for Divorce Taken up With Reading.

Chicago, June 6.—A letter purporting to have been written by Mrs. Catheryne E. Dean, of New York, to Madame Schumann-Heink, theatening her with a damage suit if the singer linked Mrs. Dean's name with that of William Rapp, Jr., today was ordered as evidence at the trial of Madame Schumann-Heink's suit for divorce from Rapp.

Rapp was said to have inspired the epistle. Virtually the entire session was consumed in reading letters bearing on the case. With the exception of Mrs. Dean's letter, all were written by Rapp. They were filled with endearing terms and pet phrases, expressive of his affection for Mrs. Dean.

The defense in vain sought to stem the tide of epistles.

"I look up to you and worship you," said one of Rapp's notes. "Please sign yourself Nonnie again, not Katie or any other name. Nonnie is to be a secret and sacred.

"All my thoughts are of you; you are the goal, the sine qua non. Do you belief that, you best little rascal?

"Faithfully, your Billie."

Another letter revealed that in a telephone conversation with Rapp, Madame Schumann-Heink had made him aware that she was acquainted with his attentions to Mrs. Dean. During this conversation, according to the letter, Madame Schumann-Heink said that she had saved $83,000 from the last season and did not care to sign much more."

Other Letters Read.

Other letters indicated that the writer suspected that his mail was being intercepted and warned Mrs. Dean to be careful.

Throughout the session, Rapp stared intently at Madame Schumann-Heink. She seemed absorbed and listened intently to the reading.

Madam Schumann-Heink has several other witnesses who will be heard when court re-convenes Monday.

The singer, it was announced, has abandoned her projected journey to Bayreuth, Germany, to sing at the Wagnoerian Festival. It was necessary for her to be there by June 15th.

Miss Francisco J. Ashton, an auburn haired nurse, who for five months lived in Mrs. Dean's apartments, was on the stand and her close acquaintance with the doings of Mrs. Dean and Rapp kept the attention of the crowded court room and apparently were of intense interest to the diva who listened intently.

A letter was indentified by Miss Ashton as having been sent by Mr. Rapp to Mrs. Dean. It read in part:

"Dear Nonnie:

"You are just simply Nonnie."

"God watch over you and keep you. I do not pray, but that wish is as near a prayer as I can come."

"I am falling in love with you all over again and long to have you at the head of my modest little home where your little heart and hands would control everything."

Wrote Threatening Letter.

Over the objection of counsel for the defendant, a letter was introduced in which Rapp advised Mrs. Dean to write a forcible letter to Madame Schumann-Heink, and to threaten her with a suit for damages if the diva coupled Mrs. Dean's name with that of Mr. Rapp. In the letter Rapp gave an outline of the letter which he wished to have written.

A letter counched in similar language and received by the singer from Mrs. Dean later was introduced.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hauk in her deposition said she had often seen Mr. Rapp at the Dean apartment, and Lillian Schmidt, daughter of the Dean apartment owner, told of being hired by Mark Harrison, an actor, to take Pluto, Mrs. Dean's dog, out for exercise.

The girl testified she saw Rapp at the Dean apartment wearing a robe and fixing the stove. She declared Mrs. Dean asked him to buy some meat and called him "Honey."

"Once," the girl's deposition ran, "Mrs. Dean showed me a letter from Mr. Rapp. She kissed the letter and I pretended I did not see it. She let me read the letter. I don't remember what it said, but it ended, 'Your faithful Billie."

Mrs. Annie Schmidt, mother of Lillian, in a deposition said she knew Rapp and often had seen him about Mrs. Dean's place. She told of seeing him about Mrs. Dean's place. She told of seeing him leave early each morning in February, 1913. "He waved to somebody at the kitchen widow every morning," said Mrs. Schmidt.

Wash! Scrub! Why Not? Schumann-Heink Cooks

Mme. SCHUMANN-HEINK

Chicago, June 6.—"Of course I clean house and wash and cook. And I scrub too. Why shouldn't I?" This in surprise from Mme. Schumann-Heink, the great opera and concert singer who is suing her husband, William Rapp, Jr., for divorce on statutory grounds and in turn is being sued for the same alleged cause by Mr. Rapp. Everybody who has ever heard about madame knows that she is first, last and all the time a home loving mother, who thinks more of her eight children than she does of anything else. While on the stand in her divorce case she freely told about her home life, and the crowded court smiled as the diva told how she scrubbed and washed and cooked because she liked to.

COMPLETE PROBE OF NEW HAVEN FINANCES

Inquiry by Commission Virtually Concluded.

Inter-State Commerce Commission Will Prepare Report to Make to Senate in Response to Norris Resolution.

Washington, June 6.—Investigation into the financial affairs of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, which the Inter-State Commerce Commission has been conducting several weeks, virtually was concluded today, Commissioner McChord announcing the inquiry would be discontinued for the present.

It is believed no important testimony in relation to the New Haven's financial affairs remains to be taken and that the witnesses already heard have furnished the commission with enough material on which to frame its report to the Senate, called for by the Norris resolution directing the inquiry.

David E. Brown, an examiner for the commission, testified that his inspection of the New England Navigation Company's records failed to disclose the purchase of the Worcester, Nashua & Rochester road by the New Haven, although J. P. Morgan & Company's books showed the sale was made through the Morgan firm. Mr. Brown said that if the books of the Morgan Company were correct the records of the Navigation company must be false.

After testifying that a dividend on the 109,948 shares of Boston & Maine stock held by John L. Billiard, was turned over to the New England Navigation Company by Mr. Billiard, but entered on its books as interest on notes of the New England Investment & Security Company, Mr. Brown said:

"I made the accusation to the general auditor of the company that it was a falsification of records. It was by deduction that I came to the conclusion, but I subsequently found the file of the treasurer which verified my conclusion and I showed him that file."

L. S. Miller, president of the New York, Westchester & Boston railway testified as to transactions leading to the acquisition of the Westchester road. He said the road was an asset in that it helped relieve the New Haven's passenger traffic entering New York.

John A. Garver, attorney for William Rockefeller, stated that Mr. Rockefeller's physician was of the opinion that it would be dangerous for his patient in his present condition of health to come to Washington and testify.

HUERTA SINCERE IN HIS PROMISE

Dictator Will Not Hide Behind Technicalities.

STATEMENT IS ISSUED

His Representatives at Niagara Falls Declare No Strings Attached to His Promise to Vacate Job at Mexico City.

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 6.—"No strings are attached to Gen. Huerta's promise to resign the Mexican Presidency as soon as his country is politically pacified." His delegates to the mediation conference took occasion to say publicly that he does not intend to hide behind technicalities.

The Mexican delegation had concluded that their recent statement setting forth the attitude of Gen. Huerta toward demands for his retirement was misinterpreted in some quarters. It had been said that under the language of his pledge to retire when the country was politically pacified, Gen. Huerta might insist on holding office until all guerilla bands were dispersed. On that account another statement was issued today by the Huerta delegation. It reads:

"Mr. Rabasa, of the Mexican delegation, has been asked what is the interpretation given by the Mexican delegates to the word 'politically' in their statement declaring that Gen. Huerta is prepared to withdraw provided that, at the time of his withdrawal, 'Mexico shall be politically pacified,' and if he thinks that an agreement between the two contending parties would not be considered as fulfilling Gen. Huerta's condition.

"To the above questions Mr. Rabasa answers that the expression used by the delegation does not mean that Gen. Huerta demands the material pacification of the country nor the dispersal of the last of the groups of bandits which overrun many parts of it, making the revolution a pretext for their lawlessness, but that peace shall be assured by political means which will guarantee for the nation that maintenance of law an order which is indispensable to the exercise of constitutional functions. The object in view is peace.

"The condition is that that object shall have been achieved. If an agreement ensues that the revolution, the condition is as well fulfilled by it as by any other means."

The American delegates today met with the mediators, but consideration was given only to questions that arose before the matter of Constitutional participation became the important issue.

No Obstacles in Way.

For some time now it has been evident that there are no serious obstacles to a settlement which would win for the Washington government all that was asked of Huerta. The plan virtually agreed upon for Huerta's elimination and the setting up of a new government with both the Cientificos and Constitutionalists equally represented, and with a neutral holding the rank of President.

Should the Constitutionalists decline to participate it is thought the United States still would have to carry out its part of the bargain. In that event it is not impossible that this country may find herself the ally of the present Mexico City government. The situation is believed to be the cause of a great deal of embarrassment to the Washington administration.

Some comfort is being derived here from the fact that Gen. Carranza has placed Gen. Natera at the head of the army nearest Mexico City. Should it be necessary for an American force to proceed from Vera Cruz to the Mexican capital to aid in establishing a provisional government—and such a course is a possibility—the Americans would rather have Gen. Natera at the head of the approaching Constitutionalist army than Gen. Villa.

Mediators and American delegates say an answer to the latest note to Gen. Carranza probably will be received by Tuesday.

DEMURRER IN FRANK CASE IS SUSTAINED

Likelihood That Case Will Go to Supreme Court.

Attorneys for Factory Superintendent Expected to Appeal to Higher Courts Immediately—Refused to Hear Motion.

Atlanta, une 6.—Judge Ben H. Hill, of the Fulton county Superior court today sustained the State's demurrer to the motion to set aside the verdict by which Leo M. Frank was pronounced guilty of the murder of Many Phagan, a factory girl. The motion was based on the claim that Frank's constitutional rights were violated when the verdict was returned during the condemned man's absence from court.

In sustaining the demurrer Judge Hill refused to hear the motion on its merits, holding instead that it was filed too late to merit consideration.

In the event that the ruling is affirmed Frank's lawyers probably would appeal to the United States Superme Court.

WILSON TO ATTEND UNVEILING OF STATUE TO WOMEN OF CONFEDERACY

MONUMENT to WOMEN of the CONFEDERACY

Raleigh, N. C., June 6.—President Wilson has accepted the invitation of the State authorities of North Carolina to be present on June 10 and unveil the monument to the women of the Confederacy, which has been erected on the Capitol grounds here. The monument is the gift to the State of the late Col. Ashley Horne, of Clayton, who was inspired thereto by the memory of his mother, who gave six sons to the Southern cause, three of whom fell during the campaign in Virginia. Josephus Daniels, of Raleigh, Secretary of the Navy, a lifelong friend of Colonel Horne, will deliver an address at the dedication ceremonies. The design depicts the mother of the Confederacy seated with a Bible in her lap, while kneeling at her side is a boy with a sword in his hands, to whom she is relating its history. Determination is written on both faces, but that expressed by the woman is mingled with sorrow.

MAY COMPROMISE ON TOLLS REPEAL

Simmons and Norris Draw up an Agreement.

WILL VOTE NEXT WEEK

Compromise Amendment Enbodies all of Simmons' Original Amendment and One Offered by Norris as Substitute.

Washington, une 6.—A compromise amendment to the tolls repeal bill, drawn by Senator Simmons for the administration forces and Senator Norris for Republican Senators, will be offered when the bill comes to a vote in the Senate.

The new amendment embodies all of the original Simmons amendment recommended by the Senate interoceanic canal committee, as well as the more emphatic resolution proposed by Senator Norris several days ago as a substitute for the committee amendment.

The strength developed for the Norris amendment, particularly on the Democratic side, influenced the administration forces to modify their amendment.

The compromise reads:

"That the passage of this act shall not be construed or held as a waiver or relinquishment of any right the United States may have under the treaty with Great Britain ratified the 18th of November, 1901, or otherwise, to exempt the vessels of the United States or its citizens from the payment of tolls for passage through said canal, or as in any way waiving, impairing or affecting any right of the United States under said treaty or otherwise, with respect to the sovereignty over or the ownership, control and management of said canal and the regulation of the conditions or charges of traffic through same."

A vote on the amendment and the bill may be reached late Monday. An effort may be made after the bill is disposed of to press a resolution to arbitrate the Panama tolls exemption question with Great Britain.

Senator Hitchcock, Democratic colleague of Senator Norris, announced early in the day that he would vote for the Norris substitute. He said he would favor any amendment which would put the bill where it could not be construed as a surrender of the American right to discriminate in favor of American vessels in the use of the Panama canal.

Senator Works of California, spoke against repeal, and like Senators Hitchcock and Thompson insisted the repeal bill should be amended by providing that neither the passage of the act, nor the collection of tolls from American ships should deprive the United States of the right to exempt American vessels from tolls at any future time.

Early in the day Senators Cummins and Simmons indulged in a joint debate as to the nature of Great Britian's protest.

SENATE PREPARES TO TAKE UP BILLS

Anti-Trust Measures Come After Tolls Repeal.

GIVEN TO COMMITTEES

All Three of the Measures Passed by the House Reach the Senate and Placed in Hands of Committees—Objections.

Washington, June 6.—Preparations today were made in the Senate to take up anti-trust legislation as soon as the Panama tolls exemption repeal bill is disposed of next week.

The inter-State commerce committee voted to report out for the present only a bill creating a Federal trade commission and the three anti-trust bills passed yesterday by the House were received by the Senate, and sent to committees for consideration. There they probably will rest for several weeks. Chairman Newlands, of the inter-State commerce committee said today he would report the trade commission bill to the Senate early next week and attempt to have it made the unfinished business.

There is a strong sentiment in the Senate to pass merely the trade commission bill and adjourn, the belief being that such legislation is sufficient for the present. Whether this spirit will prevail is a matter for speculation.

Several Senators on the commerce committee today are known to have opposed any motion to put any sort of trust legislation before the Senate at this time.

Brandegee Objects.

Senator Brandegee, a Republican member of the committee tonight issued a statement saying he regarded the taking up of questions affecting the further regulation of business at this time a grave mistake.

"I do not think," the statement said, "that a worn and exasperated Congress should be asked to enter upon the discussion of all these intricate and controverted questions in mid-summer on the eve of a Nation-wide political campaign. I don't think the agitation will tend to restore confidence to the distracted and drooping business of the country."

The commerce committee concluded its hearings today with the testimony of representatives of the United States Chamber of Commerce, who showed that a poll of its membership on a trade commission bill gave 522 votes for a bill similar to that passed by the House with 124 votes against it.

A. P. Thom, general counsel for the Southern Railway, argued against the broad power granted to the Inter-State Commerce Commission to supervise railroad security issues in the so-called railway capitalization bill passed by the House.

CARRANZA'S REPLY EXPECTED MONDAY

Rumors Have It That Rebel Chief Will Agree.

TO ENTER MEDIATION

Washington Confident of America's Right to Prevent Blockage of Tampico by Huerta's Gun boats.

Washington, June 6.—Unofficial reports were current in Washington today that Gen. Carranza, chief of the Constitutionalist forces in Mexico, was willing to participate in the mediation at Niagara Falls on condition that there should be no armistic between his forces and the Huerta Government and that Mexican internal questions to be considered should concern affairs developed by the American occupation of Vera Cruz. Carranza's answer to the communication of the mediators was expected to be forwarded from Saltillo by Monday.

Should Carranza's position coincide with that outlined here, the general opinion was that mediation negotiations would proceed and that a way would be found for Constitutionalist delegates to participated in the negotiations.

Department heads tonight seemed confident General Huerta would not attempt to blockade the port of Tampico against the delivery by the Cuban steamer Antilla of arms for the Constitutionalists. The American State Department, it was pointed out, was fully satisfied of its right to prevent a blockade. It also was made known that a conclusion had been reached that this government had no authority to intervene in the delivery of ammunition at Tampico.

Admiral Badger reported from Vera Cruz that Huerta's gunboats still were at Puerto Mexico, and Alvardo. This was taken as evidence that they would be sent to Tampico to intercept the Antilla.

Secretary Bryan today conferred with the President and was accompanied by John R. Silliman, the American consul geneeral who so narrowly escaped death at the hands of Mexican Federals at Saltillo. The President directed Mr. Silliman to make a written report of his experiences and enjoined him to keep silence in the meantime as to his treatment at the hands of the Mexicans.

No official comment could be had today on London publications that Sir Edward Grey had warned Secretary Bryan of the intention of the British to obtain reparation for the killing of the British subject Benton by the Constitutionalists.

To Make Negative Answer.

El Paso, Texas, June 6.—The proposition from the A. B. C. mediators to Gen. Carranza merely requests the participation of the Constitutionalists in the Niagara Falls conferences to settle the Mexican difficulty, it was said here today on authority. It embodies no specific request that Gen. Carranza discuss either internal or international questions, nor does it even specify that an armistice between the revolutionists and the Huerta troops must be established, according to the version given here.

In the belief of those here who are in a position to know Carranza's ideas, Carranza will make a negative and a positive reply. He will agree, it was predicted, to enter the negotiations to attempt a settlement of the international difficulties growing out of the Vera Cruz incident, but will decline to sit in conference with Huerta delegates for discussion of internal affairs.

An armistice would also be refused, according to Carranza's local agents. Gen. Carranza was reported as having departed today from Torreon for Saltillo, where his new provisional government will be established. It was believed Villa remained in Chihuahua City and did not confer with Gen. Carranza at Torreon.

Nelson Whitney Southern Champ.

HOLDS GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP OF SOUTH FOR FOURTH CONSECUTIVE YEAR.

Memphis, Tenn., June 6.—Nelson P. Whitney, of the Audubon County Club, New Orleans, today, for the fourth time, won the Amateur Golf Championship of the South, defeating the youthful Perry Adair, of Atlanta, 14 up and 13 to play, in the tournament finals of the Southern Golf Association.

Playing the same steady game that won him the championship in 1907 and 1908 and again in 1913, Whitney was master of the situation at all stages of today's play, while the 15-year-old-Georgian, whose play in the preliminary matches has been the sensation of the tournament, was nervous and unstrung from the start. In the first 18 holes, only one went to Adair and at the end of the morning round he was 12 down. Of the five holes played in the afternoon Whitney took two and three were halved.

In was in the long game that Whitney was best today. On the greens he was a strifle erratic, missing one and two foot putts. Adair was completely off his game. In a word it was a victory of the veteran golfer, with the confidence gained by years of experience, over the novice who was unable to stand the strain of the grulling tournament play.

A DAILY HOME RUN

GERMANY SCHAEFER.

Germany Schaefer hired a guide in Cairo, and demanded to be shown the spot where Moses was found in the bullrushes. The guide led him to the banks of the Nile and pointed out the spot, even gathering some of the rushes for Schaefer to send home.

An hour or two later Schaefer grabbed another guide, and after a time the guide offered, for an additional fee, to show him the spot where Moses was found in the rushes. He led Schaefer a mile or two in the other direction and pointed out another spot.

"Nothing doing," yelled Schaefer. "That's eight places I've been shown where Moses was found."

"True," asserted the guide. "The river was in flood, and Moses landed in many places."

W.L.I. TRIMS BRIGADE GIANTS BEAT Y.M.C.A.

Exciting Games Featured by Sensational Pitching

Register and Shaw Furnished Two and Three Hit Games, Respectively. Green Six and Rivenbark Two.

Standing of the Clubs.

	P	W	L	T	Pct.
W. L. I.	6	5	1	1	.800
Y. M. C. A.	5	3	2	0	.600
Boys' Brigade	6	2	4	0	.333
Giants	5	1	3	1	.250

The threatening weather kept a large crowd from seeing two of the best games of the season of the City League at Sunset Park yesterday afternoon. The W. L. I. took the first from the Boys' Brigade, 6 to 4, while the Giants surprised everybody by winning their first game of the season from the Y. M. C. A. three to two.

Both games were featured by the light hitting of everyone. Register pitched his usual good game, holding the Infantry boys to two hits and fanning seven. Shaw was also there with the goods, holding the Brigade to three hits and causing 12 batsmen to fan wildly at his invisible twisters. The base running of the Infantry team was responsible for the defeat of the Brigade boys.

The second game was another pitchers' duel between the veteran Green and Rivenbark. Both had plenty of steam, which they used to good advantage, as it was very cloudy and dark. Green was hit six times, three in the fifth inning, allowing two runs to be scored. This was enough to win the game, as he had only two hits behind him. Rivenbark, although a trifle wild in the early part of the game, pitched a good game, holding the heavy hitting Association team to two hits, fanning seven batsmen. The feature of the game was in the fifth inning, when Taylor knocked down Davis' hit by second and caught him at first.

First Game.

First Inning, W. L. I.—Hines beat out a bunt and went to third on wild pitch. Shaw struck out; Boswell walked and stole second. Terry was safe on error of short, Boswell going to third; Hines scoring. Boswell was caught out between third and home, Terry going to second. Terry advanced to third on wild pitch and Duls struck out. One run, one hit.

Second inning, W. L. I.—Orrell flied to second, Smith was safe on an error of short and stole second. Bell struck out and Smith stole third and came home when catcher threw wild over third. Shaw expired on a beautiful throw by Morton. One run, no hits.

Third inning, W. L. I.—Hines walked and stole second, taking third on Shaw's out at first, and coming across the plate on an error of pitcher. Boswell out between first and second and Terry expired at first. One run, no hits.

Fifth inning, W. L. I.—Bell was hit by a pitched ball. Shaw struck out and Hines was safe on an error of first and stole second. Both runners scored when Morton threw through Wilson, Shaw taking second on the play. Boswell struck out and Terry died at first again. Two runs, no hits.

Fifth inning, Boys' Brigade—Wilson flied out and Bergen struck out. Morton was safe on Hines' bad throw to first and scored on Huhn's single to left. Huhn stole second. Shepard aired to right. One run, one hit.

Seventh inning, W. L. I.—Bell was killed at first, and Shaw met a similar fate. Hines got on on account of error of second, stole second and went to third on wild pitch, scoring on a third strike which Wilson let go by. Boswell was safe on an error of short and Terry skied to left. One run, no hits.

Seventh inning, Boys' Brigade—C. Burnett hit by pitched ball. Wilson and Bergen took the paths on passes and Morton was also tapped by a pitch, forcing Burnett across the rubber. Huhn was safe on an error of third, Wilson and Bergen scoring. Morton was caught off second and Huhn was tagged trying for this cushion. Shepard struck out. Three runs, no hits.

Second Game.

Fifth inning, Giants—Palmgren out on first. Cashwell singled to left. Hines struck out and Shepard followed with a scorcher for two bags, scoring Cashwell. Gerdes singled to right scoring Shepard and went to third on a bad peg to second. Davis struck out. Two runs, three hits.

Fifth inning, Y. M. C. A.—Houston was out on a fly to pitcher. Lewis was safe on an error of short and went to third on a passed ball, scoring on Green's infield hit. Green went to second on a bad throw to first. Buck singled to center and Green was pegged at the plate, Buck taking third. Taylor was out on a fly to pitcher. One run, two hits.

Sixth inning, Giants—Kite was out at first unassisted. Rivenbark doubled to center, Bethea hit to third and Rivenbark romped across. Palmgren and Cashwell struck out. One run, two hits.

Eighth inning, Y. M. C. A.—Fillyaw flied to center, Houston walked and stole second, going to third on Lewis' out at first, scoring on a wild pitch. Green struck out. One run, no hits.

TRUE BILL RETURNED AGAINST GROVER HAND

Charged With Being Accessory Before the Fact.

(By Long Distance Telephone)

Burgaw, N. C., June 6.—The grand jury in Pender Superior court today returned a true bill against Grover C. Hand, charging him with being an accessory before the fact in the killing of George P. Jordan, who was shot to death by his sister, Mrs. Grover C. Hand, at the home of her father, George P. Jordan, five miles from here, about two weeks ago.

Hand was taken in custody by the sheriff. The court required a bond of $3,000 for his appearance for trial at next term, and this he gave late this afternoon, whereupon he was released.

The hearing on the application of Mrs. Hand for a writ of habeas corpus, made by her attorneys before Judge Cooke in Wilmington last week, was continued until Monday, June 15, when Judge Cooke will return here to investigate the merits of the application. In the meantime Mrs. Hand is to remain under surveilance at her home, the defense and not the county to pay the cost of guarding her.

Court adjourned for the term about 7 o'clock this evening and Judge Cooke is expected to leave tomorrow. During the four days he was here, he did not have time, it seems, for the habeas corpus hearing of Mrs. Hand.

THEATRICAL

Big things never come singly, nor even in pairs, when you're talking about the Bijou. For proof, you are asked to turn to another page in this paper and scan the list of big pictures that will be served up to Bijou patrons during the coming week, which will open in a blaze of glary tomorrow afternoon.

Heading tomorrow's bill will be a mammoth two-reel Imp dramatic feature, "King the Detective in the Marine Mystery" in which King Baggot, the popular photoplay artist, has scored another distinct success. He is supported by such stars as Frank Smith, Wm. Welsh, Howard Crampton and Miss Coffin. It is a hedliner, one of the big things of the week.

Following will be a big American drama, "The Pursuer Pursued" in which Ed Coxen takes the leading part. It is a big p lay acted by a big company, and will prove a headliner.

A big Crystal comedy, "Snookum's Last Racket" will end the day's bill, and will prove one of the most ludicrously amusing of the many big Crystals that you have seen in the past.

Owing to a change in the general programme, by which the popular photoplay house will be enabled to present the various big releases with in a very few days after they leave the factory, newer than any pictures that have ever been presented in Wilmington, the Mutual Girl will hereafter appear on Tuesday instead of Wednesday; the Lucile Love Mystery will be put on Wednesdays instead of Mondays, and the Perlis of instead of Mondays, and the Perils of Pauline will come on Thursday instead of Wednesday. This is to make room on these other dates, for some big brand new releases, s hown in Wilmington first.

At the Grand This Week.

While the past week, which ended so gloriously last night, was a hummer for the delightful, popular Grand, why the present week is going to far exceed it in artistic glory. Also in a financial way, if amusement-lovers have their appetites whetted up and the right kind of apreciation throbbing in their hearts for the theatre that provides them with the biggest things and when those things are fresh.

The Grand is also delightfully comfortable, being swept by breezes from many revolving electric fans and kept freely ventilated. So the Grand affords a really brilliant setting for the big shows that are daily presented there; shows representing the exclusive output for Wilmington of the Vitagraph, the Kalem, the Edison, the Biograph, the Selig and other well known concerns, that stand foremost in the creation of moving pictures. Each film, too, bears the stamp of approval of the National Board of Censors, thus assuring an atmosphere that is thoroughly wholesome.

The menu of films for this week is a really wonderful one, and will prove most tempting. The bill tomorrow will start the week off in great shape, as tomorrow's list discloses perhaps the finest array of photoplay triumphs ever presented in this city. Each day will be feature day at the Grand, but keep your eye open for Wednesday's great special film.

New York, June 6.—Clayton Rockhill, honorary consul general of Bulgaria, in New York city, has been advised that it is the intention of Queen Eleanora to visit the United States about the middle of next October. The Queen planned to come to the United States last Spring but decided to defer her visit.

Washington, June 6.—One of President Wilson's chauffeurs paid a fine of $10 today in a country court on the outskirts of the capital for speeding with a White House party a few days ago. The President has ordered the White House chauffeurs to observe all local speed laws.

Interlinking Talking Circles

EACH Bell telephone is the center of a talking circle to which there are no arbitrary boundaries within the limits of speech transmission.

Each central office is a clearing house for telephone talk extending far beyond its own system.

Universal communication means not only intercommunication between subscribers in the same exchange system, and with those in other exchange systems, but also long distance communication with each connected telephone in the Bell system within speaking distance.

There are over 7,500,000 interconnecting Bell telephones, each an open door for telephonic communication, uniting a nation of 92,000,000 people and promoting the happiness, the welfare and the prosperity of all.

The Day of Fake Advertising is Passing

As a matter of self-protection, as well as protection of the public, we are downright glad to see the dawn of honest advertising.

The store that has honest merchandise at right prices need not hesitate to tell the truth.

For Example, we never had the least difficulty in advertising Stein-Bloch Smart Clothes for men. They contain so much that is superalitively good that the plain truth about them is the simplest kind of a story.

But after all they tell their own story better than cold type can tell it. If you, Mr. Man, are not familiar with that story and the clothes that tell it, don't you wait another day to hear it.

Incidentally, the Spring and Summer showing of Stein-Bloch Smart Clothes is ready. To be found here exclusively.

ANNOUNCEMENT—SEVEN-DAY PAPER.

An overwhelmingly large number of our patrons in Wilmington having recently, by postal card referendum, expressed themselves in favor of a seven-day paper, instead of a paper daily except Monday as published heretofore, The Star on and after tomorrow, Monday, June 8th, will be issued every day in the year, thus falling in line with practically every other morning paper of consequence in the State.

While this step has been taken reluctantly for obvious reasons, and while at first the issuance of a Monday paper will be at a financial loss to ourselves, so great had become the public demand for an equal service to that given by other morning papers in the larger cities of the State, notably Charlotte, Raleigh, Winston-Salem, Greensboro, Asheville and Durham, that a seven-day paper becomes inevitable.

In making the change from a six to a seven-day paper, it should be stated that in all the plans for launching the every-day paper, we were thoroughly in sympathy with the ideas of those of our friends who expressed solicitude for those of us who contribute of our labors to the making of the paper, and that it has never been contemplated other than that every man in the employ of the office should have his "one day in seven" for rest and recuperation.

To others who may have had objections because of Sunday work involved, it need only be said that as the years go by the newspaper has come more and more to be regarded as a necessary part of the daily life of an intelligent people and as a common carrier of news and information as necessary as is the steam railroad for the transportation of mail and passengers, and as the electric light and power wires for the transmission of electricity, all of which involve more or less physical labor on the Sabbath.

However, the subject is one well nigh inexhaustible in debate, and it is needful to say here only that our plans for the Monday paper involve a minimum of work on the Sabbath, in fact, really less than is now given week in and week out to the Sunday edition. Our business office will be open for the handling of emergency orders only, and then only will it, or any other department of the paper, be open until at the latest hour possible at night to insure the issuance of the paper and the carrying of only the most important news the following day.

We hope also to make the Monday edition of the paper an influence for greater good in the community in that heretofore with an interim of two days between and the natural accumulation of other matters, it has never been possible for the paper to give to the religious news and views developing over Sunday that attention and prominence to which they are entitled. We hope to make of the Monday paper a reflection of the doings of the churches and religious organizations of the city to an extent not possible heretofore.

With this explanation of our plans and purposes with reference to the seven-day paper, we trust that the expectations of all our friends may be met and that our critics may be, at least, partially disarmed.

In conclusion, however, all must admit that this progressive age brings with it an evolution in the growth of our cities and the constantly growing demands of larger communities, so that Wilmington's development having placed her in the metropolitan class, she is compelled by circumstances to keep abreast in every particular with those cities which are going ahead and not standing still while the high gear is set for the modern pace.

"Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty" and besides that it is about the only thing that will keep the monopolists from regaining control of the govenment for those who provide the flesh pots which made the beneficiaries of privilege wax fat and grow insolent.

STANDARD MILK.

A number o fthe most populous States and largest cities have strong laws concerning the quality of milk, the handling of dairy products, and the manner of distributing milk to dealers and purchasers. The laws fix a certain standard for milk and cream, and sellers of such products are liable to serve penalties when they put upon the market the various dairy products that are not up to the standard as to richness and purity.

However, the public must largely depend upon the honesty and standing of the dairymen, since the law can be of service only when there are prosecutions for violation of the regulations. The law provides a way to punish those who are guilty of its infraction, but it is not a preventative, except in the possibility of its deterring persons from doing business in a fradulent or careless manner. Reputation, therefore, is everything to a dairyman who wishes to succeed, for when confidence in him and his products is lost, his business meets with disaster.

During May, the Chester (Pa.) Republican tells us, 92 arrests were made by the State Dairy and Food Commission. Of the number of arrests made, 42 were for violation of Pennsylvania's law fixing standards for fats in milk and cream. Hundreds of samples were taken in varlous counties and after they had been carefully analyzed, arrests were ordered and the violators of the law were brought to book. Seventeen of the arrests were for selling skimmed milk, which had been too greatly reduced in nutritious qualities. In a dozen other instances the pump had been called upon to help out the cow. One fifth of the buttermilk bought in Scuylkill county was found to contain a large amount of added water.

Of course, consumers of such "doctored" products were defrauded, and in Pennsylvania the laws are severe upon those who tamper with human foods. People cannot be too careful in purchasing milk, for all milk is not good milk and all good milk is not pure milk. What a small and contemptible fraud it is to water milk or to skim the rich portion of the milk away and then sell either, most likely for some infant or sick person to drink. Where nutrition is to be desired, something hardly better than water is liable to be served for the purpose when the milkman is dishonest and the laws are not enforced—if there are any to be enforced.

TRAINING SCHOOL QUARTERLY.

The Star has received the initial number of the "Training School Quarterly," a new magazine published by the students and faculty of the East Carolina Teachers' Training School, Greenville, North Carolina. It is a neat and attractive publcation and has merit stamped upon every page. The editorial page is piquant and entertaining and is evidence of a source characterized by fine talent and rare gifts. The numerous articles by various contributors are thoughtful and well written, and all the features of the Quarterly are admirable in arrangement and skilfully conducted. Indeed, the magazine is a classy product that reflects great credit upon the Training School and will give the institution additional prestige among the educatonal institutions of the State.

The editor-in-chief is Mattie H. Bright, and certainly she literally stamps her name upon the editorial columns of the publication. The associate editors are Blanche Lancaster, Emily D. Gayle, Marion F. Alston and Grace E. Smith. The business manager is Annie E. Shaw, and the staff includes an advisory board consisting of the following members of the faculty: Maria W. Graham, Mamie E. Jenkins and Daisy B. Waitt. Those who are responsible for the first number of the Quarterly have The Star's congratulations upon the high standard which they have set for it and upon their literary achievements at the very beginning.

This gives The Star another opportunity to note the fine impression which the East Carolina Teachers Training School is making upon the State. Its work has made an enviable rank for it as an educational institution, and the able staff which is giving the school such a fine reputation is entitled to the admiration and plaudits of all Carolinians interested in the educational progress of the State.

THE WORLD'S WONDERS.

A boy prodigy has turned up in New England in the shape of an 11-year-old evangelist who has a marvelous gift at reading and interpreting the Scriptures. He is unabashed by the largest audiences and with great rapidity he turns from one book to the other, taking out texts here and there to explain the meaning of one he reads and wishes to expound. He amazes Bible students with his familiarity with the Bible from one end to the other, and he is the wonder of ministers of the Gospel who have heard his exposition of Holy Writ. Think of an 11-year-old who becomes the religious teacher of thousands.

Hardly less wonderful is Russia's child musician, Willie Ferrero. Recently he arrived in London, heralded by accounts of his successes at the Court of St. Petersburg, where in the presence of the Imperial family he conducted the Czar's orchestra. He is about seven years old and is an extremely handsome kid who is one of the world's latter day wonders. Without ever having learned a note of music, he can lead the largest orchestra with ease.

Some curiosity was felt in London whether the boy's capacity was as great as had been described, but his first appearance in Albert Hall, when he conducted an orchestra of 90 performers in Beethoven's First Symphony, in the overture from "Die Meistersinger" and in "Peer Gynt," left the public in no doubt as to his extradrdinary powers. In England Willie Ferrero has been received by Qeen Alexanderia at Marlborough House upon the recommendation of her sister, the Dowager Empress of Russia.

The world goes on producing wonders and the worst part of it is that the great majority of people never hear of them, much less get a chance to see them.

LOOK WHO'S AGAINST WILSON.

Among the critics of the purposeful and high aimed administration of President Wilson, we find those who wrecked railroads by high finance, destroyed industries by merging some into trusts and crushing others by malicious competition, who controlled the country's banking system for their own fell purposes, organized monopolies to get consumers by the fleece, and subscribed millions to carry elections and keep their aiders, abettors and accomlices in power. Look at the line-up against Wilson and you will see men whose motives and designs were discovered and whose schemes and plans are uncovered.

Where do you stand while the plot thickens to discredit the first administration in fifty years whose sole aim, even in its possible mistakes, is to administer the Government in the interest of the people and to preserve the Government for the people?

Where are you in the line-up? Where are you in the firing line which is taking a shot at any and everything that the opposition points out as a wolf?

There are two things which a man should not do. He should not fool himself, nor let others fool him. Be not deceived by the loud and husky criers and the distracting bazoo blasts that are intended to make you sit up and listen.

The time to call Wilson down is when the privilege cohorts now against hi mare blessing him for being good to them.

A New Yorker expresses the belief that the wifeless breakfast table is one of the chief causes of divorce. No doubt another one is the husbandless evenings that make many a wife wish she never had married a man who comes home only when there is no place else he can think of to go.

A man who had a big panic on his hands when he was President is trying to frighten us at the merest possibility of one under Wilson. He'd ought to let somebody else scare us. He's disqualified on account of what actually happened to him.

Government bounty for special interest was the rule so long that a lot of men refer to it as a principle. It is so unprincipled, in fact, that in 1912 the people voted for it to be thrown out on the junk heap to stay.

The English suffragettes are taking the axe to those obstinate Britons, but they are still on the job when it comes to turning a deaf ear to the vixens ho are making equal suffrage obnoxious to even its friends.

Editor Johnson, of the Rowland Sun, was so busy he forgot the birthday of his paper. When it comes to being on the job, he never forgets to make Sun shine for the readers of his excellent paper.

About the time somebody tells us the world is getting better, people come along and claim to have discovered the North Pole or something else equally as good.

Some writer says there are too many lawyers, but it must be remembered that when one lawyer gets after a fellow he is one too many for him as a general thing.

The first thing Huerta does in the morning is to take a drink and decide not to let anybody else be President of Mexico till they come on and put him out.

With the season at the seaside in full blast, Wilmington's Summer gaiety is now on for good. Everybody loves to come to Wilmington.

Are we working up more payrolls for Wilmington?

CURRENT COMMENT.

"We believe," said the minority report to the Democratic State convention, "that the Democratic party can only hope to succeed in the State and Nation by placing the management of government affairs directly in the hands of the people and by proper election machinery enabling the masses to directly express their preferences in the selection of those officers who are to administer the affairs of their government." The convention did not so believe, and said so, by rejecting the minority report.—Greensboro News.

The only contest in the State convention yesterday was over a Statewide primary. The opposition came principally from the Western delegates and created the impression that the leaders there, in many instances, have not learned to trust the people and still cling to manipulation as the best plan to succeed. They appealed to the East to let them select their candidates for the Legislature and county offices in their own way and brought out the old gag of how they consented to give up the right of electing their County Commissioners in the old days to save the East from negro domination, and many eastern delegates responded to the appeal by voting against the minority report.—Maxton Scottish Chief.

The work of the Democratic State Convention at Raleigh was of a satisfactory kind, its commitments being safe and conservative, recognition being given at the same time to the progressive spirit governing the party in the State. The only occasion for a contest of any sort centered in the framing of the platform recommendations and from this task the party had a sound deliverance. There was no ripping up of established planks. The platform was left practically intact, with the strengthening of some of its principal features. There had been some inclination to force the party into declarations of a radical character and to strap upon its shoulders questions the settlement of which properly belongs to the tribune of the whole people of the State—the Legislature. These intentions were early abandoned before the conservative sentiment developed by the committee on platform.—Charlotte Observer.

Sentiment in North Carolina, correctly guaged, is for a State-wide legalized primary, which will apply to all elective offices, a primary guarded by law which will give to every voter the right to say whom he desires to be elected to office as the nominees of his party. The Democratic State convention, in declaring for the principle of a legalized State-wide primary for all parties for National, State and judicial officers did a good thing, but not enough of a good thing, and in some respects it has put itself in an anomalous condition by its segregation of officers inside and outside a primary law. Here is the view: It is declared as a principle that members of Congress should be named at a legalized primary. Yet the convention balked at saying that members of the North Carolina General Assembly should be nominated at a primary. Is it not just as important that the men who make laws in Raleigh should be named in a primary by the people, as that the men who make laws in Washington should be named in a primary? As we see it, there should be a primary all down the line.—Raleigh News and Observer.

A WORD ON STREET IMPROVEMENTS.

To the Editor of The Star:

Street improvement has been going very rapidly in Wilmington for the past few years and I think our city ranks among the first in the State for beautiful streets, but there have been a few streets overlooked in the great improvement. One of these is the strip of Eighth street between Dock and Orange. This part of Eighth street has never been paved, and only one side of it is curbed. The rain runs down into the people's yards and washes great trenches in the sidewalks. About a year ago when Orange street was being improved there were about 50 or 60 loads of sand and rock, along with several loads of trash and leaves, hauled and dumped in great heaps which were never leveled down, and it would make you sea-sick to ride through there today, even on a bicycle.

The residents on this street, for the most part, take pride in cleaning up their yards and planting flowers, but there are some who do not, simply because they are disgusted from looking at sand out in front of their houses. There have been two petitions handed the Council by the residents of that section within the last two years and nothing has as yet been done. We like to ride on beautiful highways which wind through and around the suburbs, but we should practice the policy of beginning at home and improve our streets there before beginning anything outside. I think if the Councilmen have never been sea-sick, they can easily experience that sensation at a very small cost by taking a ride through Eighth street between Dock and Orange, and I think they will co-operate with the citizens in the improvement of said street.

A CITIZEN.

THE FARM WIVES LEAGUE.

To the Editor of The Star:

It might be of interest of your readers to have a word from the Farm Wives' League at Wrightsboro. These ladies have been organized about a year. They meet once a month and discuss subjects of canning, preserving, cooking, labor saving devices, for the home, etc. The subjects for discussion are announced at the previous meeting, and those expected to lead the discussions are appointed. Bulletins of the subjects studied are funished them in order that they may prepare themselves for the discussion.

It was my pleasure to be present at their meeting Friday afternoon, when the subject of home canning was under discussion. Mrs. E. I. Herring, president of the organization, opened the meeting and asked Mrs. Eva May Herring to tell the members something of what she had learned with reference to home canning, during her attendance at the meeting of the agents in Raleigh. The canning of tomatoes, beans, corn, okra, fruit, etc., was discussed by Mrs. Herring, and a general discussion followed.

I was asked to talk to them about preparing something for the Wilmington fair to be held this Fall, and also of the advisability of sending some of their products to the State Fair in Raleigh. The ladies out at Wrightsboro are in the race for better things. They are working shoulder to shoulder with Dr. Leonard, of the Rockefeller Commission, in the health work he is doing. We find the homes being screened and a general cleaning up going on. In fact the Wrightsboro folks are doing things.

CONVENTION TABLED BRUNSWICK PROPOSAL

Mr. W. B. Cooper Nominated for the State Senate.

Senatorial Convention for 10th District Featured by Fight Developing on Resolution Proposing Agreement.

Proposing that Brunswick county name the State Senator from the 10th Senatorial District every third term, thus giving New Hanover, the other county of the district, a representation of two to one, the Brunswick delegation to the District Senatorial Convention, held in the court house here yesterday, following the nomination of Mr. W. B. Cooper as the Democratic candidate for State Senator from the district, introduced a resolution binding the convention to such an agreement, and firmly insisted on its adoption, going down in defeat when the New Hanover delegation cast its solid vote in favor of a motion to table the resolution.

The action of the convention in tabling the motion was principally based on the probability of the next Legislature enacting a State-wide primary law, or if not State-wide, at least for this district, or the eastern section of the State. Other objections cited by the New Hanover delegation were to the effect that the resolution was premature, even if the convention did have the legal right to enter into such a binding agreement.

Brunswick based her appeal on the fact that this spring, when the agreement heretofore existing between the two counties, by which they alternated in naming the Senator, was abrogated, New Hanover gave that county to understand that she would be satisfied with naming the senator two terms in succession, and letting Brunswick have the third. The members of the delegation also plead that the agreement be entered into for the sake of the Democratic party in Brunswick county, as an assurance that the Democrats of New Hanover are willing to do the right thing by the party in the weaker sister county. They declared that unless some such assurance was given, they doubted whether the Democrats in Brunswick could elect their ticket this fall.

J. W. Little, Esq., chairman of the New Hanover Democratic Executive Committee, called the convention to order and on motion of Mr. W. A. McGirt, seconded by Mr. W. C. Denny, Herbert McClammy, Esq., was elected temporary chairman. On motion of Jos. W. Little, Esq., Mr. McClammy was made permanent chairman, and the representatives of the press were elected secretaries of the convention.

Under authorization of a motion by Mr. Little, the chairman named Mr. M. C. Guthrie, of Southport, and Messrs. W. P. Stacy and W. C. Denny, of Wilmington, as a credentials committee. Upon report of Mr. J. W. Little, chairman of the New Hanover committee, that all New Hanover citizens in the room were delegates to the convention, and of Mr. Guthrie that all from Brunswick were delegates, it was not necessary for the credentials committee to leave the room.

The chair declaring the convention duly organized and ready to proceed to the transaction of business, Mr. Gerritt Walker placed in nomination the name of Mr. W. B. Cooper, while Mr. Guthrie placed Jos. W. Ruark, Esq., of Southport, in nomination. Mr. Ruark was Mr. Cooper's opponent in the primary in this county and the convention in Brunswick.

Of the 17 votes in Brunswick, Mr. Ruark received 9 5-6 and Mr. Cooper 7 1-6, while in New Hanover the 40 votes were divided 25 for Cooper and 15 for Ruark. This gave Mr. Cooper 32 votes and Mr. Ruark 25. The vote of the convention was cast in accordance with these returns from the Senatorial convention in Brunswick and the primary in New Hanover, and on motion of Mr. Guthrie, seconded by Capt. J. J. Adkins, of Southport, Mr. Cooper's nomination was made unanimous.

After the nominations were over, Mr. R. N. Ranson, of the Brunswick delegation, offered the resolution relative to an agreement between the two counties, which was seconded by Mr. Guthrie, and is as follows:

"Whereas, an agreement has heretofore existed between the Democrats of New Hanover and Brunswick counties with reference to the nomination of a Democratic candidate for State Senate from the district composed of said counties; and,

"Whereas, the said agreement is apparently no longer effective:

"Therefore, Be it resolved by the Democratic Senatorial convention assembled on this 6th day of June, 1914, in the city of Wilmington, as follows:

"That it is the sense of this convention that the Democratic nomination for said Senator should alternate between Brunswick and New Hanover counties, the Democrats of New Hanover county having the right to name the candidate for two terms in succession and the candidate to be chosen each third term by the Democrats of Brunswick and that the Democratic candidate for State Senator as a member of the General Assembly of 1917 be chosen by the Democrats of Brunswick county.

"That this agreement shall be and remain in force until changed by a regularly and properly constituted Senatorial convention.

"That copies of this resolution be certified by the chairman and secretary of this convention to the chairman of the Democratic executive committees of New Hanover and Brunswick counties."

In urging the adoption of the resolution Mr. Ranson asked the New Hanover Democrats to vote for it on the grounds that some assurance was needed that New Hanover would do the fair thing by Brunswick in the matter of representation in the Senate, else the party would suffer from the action of the convention. He pointed to the fact that the county has always been close, and that the last ticket elected was the first complete Democratic victory in some years. The New Hanover Democrats, he said, in the interest of the party should do everything in their power to bring about good feeling between the two counties.

Mr. Henderson Cole opposed the resolution, though declaring that he was in favor of the spirit which it was meant to carry out. He thought that the resolution was premature, as the next convention or primary was still 18 months away. In the meantime, he said, the Legislature might re-district the State. Then, too, Mr. Cooper might make such an able representative that it would be a grave mistake not to send him back for another term.

Mr. Ranson pointed out that under the State Constitution there would be no re-districting before 1921.

Mr. T. E. Cooper thought that it might be advisable to leave the matter to the executive committees of the two counties for settlement at some later time.

Mr. Guthrie supported Mr. Ranson's remarks, and urged that the New Hanover Democrats live up to the statements made earlier in the year, when the former agreement was abrogated, to the effect that New Hanover ought to have two Senators to Brunswick's one. Brunswick, he said, realized the justice of such a contention, and now he hoped the New Hanover Democrats would be fair with the party in Brunswick.

Mr. George Harriss, former chairman of the New Hanover Executive Committee, thought the agreement embodied in the resolution a just one, but when it was pointed out by Mr. W. B. Cooper, to whom the chairman granted the privilege of expressing himself, that he intended to work for a State-wide primary law, and if not State-wide, then for the eastern section of the State, and that if such a resolution was adopted by the convention, then he would feel a hesitancy in working for the measure he had in mind, Mr. Harriss did not insist upon its adoption.

Mr. W. G. Hatch moved that the resolution be tabled, and his motion was seconded by Mr. W. R. Yopp.

After some further discussion, in which Messrs. T. E. Cooper, Jas. H. Cowan and W. A. McGirt all opposed the resolution, and Messrs. Guthrie and Ranson spoke further in its behalf, the matter was put to a vote. The New Hanover delegation voted solid for the motion to table and Brunswick solid against it, the vote being 40 to 17 in favor of the motion.

Messrs. Guthrie, Stacy and Ranson were named as a committee to escort Mr. Cooper to the platfrom, where he made a short talk, thanking the convention for the honor conferred upon him in the nomination, and pledging himself to work untiringly for the best interests of the district which he would represent. He also declared his intention of campaigning Brunswick county this fall to help the Democrats carry their ticket, and said he would endeavor to have some other Democrats to campaign the county also.

The New Hanover delegation in the convention was composed as follows:

Gerritt Walker, W. P. Stacy, J. H. Cowan, W. A. McGirt, H. R. Aiken, Walter G. Hatch, W. R. Yopp, Thos. E. Cooper, W. E. Lawson, W. C. Denny, J. W. Little, Herbert McClammy, H. Cole, H. F. Wilder, J. F. Leitner, George Harriss.

Mr. M. C. Guthrie, Mr. R. E. Ranson and Capt. J. J. Adkins, all of Southport, composed the Brunswick delegation.

ARRESTED FOR SOLICITING

Alleged That B. Israel Was Taking Orders for Cincinnati Whiskey House—In Jail.

For alleged violation of the prohibition law by taking orders for a Cincinnati whiskey house from citizens in this city, B. Israel, a well dressed young traveling man, who has been a guest at the Orton hotel for the past several days, was taken into custody yesterday afternoon by Constable Davis upon an affidavit made out by Mr. H. Mack Godwin before Justice Harriss. At a late hour last night, being unable to give the bond of $200 required for his appearance for trial next Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock he was lodged in the county jail.

Immediately after his arrest, Israel telegraphed Morse & Co., of Cincinnati, Ohio, the firm for whom he is said to have been working, asking them to provide the money for his bond. They communicated with Justice Harriss informing him that they would send the money by telegraph, if he would release Israel. At 11 o'clock last night they telegraphed Justice Harriss to draw a draft on them for the required amount, stating that they would honor same. However, Justice Harriss refused to do this and the unfortunate man was placed in jail. While an effort was being made to arrange the bond the man was kept in the custody of Constable Davis.

It is said that Israel had been in the city for the past week and that he had obtained orders for whiskey from quite a number of prominent people in the city. It is not alleged that he sold any direct, but that he had samples and took orders which were to be filled later with shipments by express. While it is charged that he was selling whiskey, he was understood by some to be working for a well known life insurance company and by others to be working for a local real estate concern.

Israel is said to have had quite a line of samples of booze, all of it of a good quality. However, it is not charged that he had more whiskey than the law allows a man in this State to have in his possession at one time.

Israel retained as his attorney W. P. Gafford, Esq., and Herbert McClammy, Esq., represents the State. The trial is set for Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock before Justice Harriss.

MAY ASK FOR SURVEY.

Councilman Loughlin Believes That Expert Should Investigate.

Councilman Loughlin will likely urge at the next meeting of Council that an expert from the Bureau of Municipal Research,, of New York, be secured to make a survey of the various departments of the city government, including the waterworks and sewerage department, the police, fire, health, streets and wharves, with a view to finding out if some improvements in their management cannot be made. Councilman Loughlin stated yesterday that he has the matter under consideration, but has not definitely decided to bring the question up at this time.

He suggested several months ago that a report from such an expert is what is most needed in Wilmington. To make such an investigation as is contemplated would probably cost $1,500. However, it is thought that the outcome would mean a saving of several thousand dollars a year to the city in other expenses.

WILMINGTON HONORED.

State C. E. Banner Won by First Church—G. L. Mitchell President

Wilmington was signally honored yesterday in the proceedings of the State convention of the Christian Endeavor in session at Greensboro, N. C., the State banner for the greatest progress during the year in North Carloina having been awarded to the Society of the Christian Endeavor of the First Presbyterian Church, of this city, and Mr. George L. Mitchell, a member of the same society, having been elected State president of the State Union. Both are honors most worthily bestowed.

Wilmington has always taken a prominent part in the State Union, the State banner having been held for one or more years by the C. E., of St. Andrew's church, and Rev. Dr. McClure having been for one or more terms the beloved State president of the Union.

DARKEY CHARGES FRAUD.

Says White Man Got the Best of Horse Trade and Has Him Indicted.

Alleging that he was defrauded out of $25 in a horse trade because a horse was misrepresented by D. P. Green, white, a warrant was sworn out before Justice Harriss yesterday by W. H. Payton, colored, for his arrest. The paper was served by Constable Davis. At the request of the defendant the case was moved to Justice Bornemann's court and will be tried before him Monday at noon. Green gave bond in the sum of $100 for his appearance.

W. P. Stacy, Esq., appeared for the negro yesterday and K. C. Sidbury, Esq., represented the defendant.

Big Sale at I. Shrier's.

Mr. I. Shrier, the well known merchant tailor at northeast corner of Front and Princess streets, has an announcement elsewhere in today's paper that will appeal to the clothes' buying public of Wilmington. On Wednesday, the 10th, this sale will start and a magnificent line of domesties will be put on sale at $13.50 for the two-piece suits while in imported fabrics the offering at $19.00 is incomparable. The advertisement speaks eloquently to people who want fit and price.

Beware of the Borrower.

A clever swindle by negroes has been "worked" on a number of unsuspecting people during the past week by negroes who go into an establishment, say that they have been sent for this or that article by some responsible person, secure the property and disappear with it. Several cases have recently come to light and people are asked to beware of such borrowers unless they have written orders for what they ask for.

PEOPLE OF NORTHWEST VOTE GOOD ROAD BONDS

For Eastern End of Wilmington-Charlotte Highway.

Issue in the Sum of $15,000 Carries by Vote of 50 Out of Total Registration of 56—Route of Proposed Highway.

Northwest township, Brunswick county, took a progressive step yesterday when the citizens of that township voted in favor of a bond issue in the sum of $15,000 for the purpose of improving and constructing a modern improved highway between the Brunswick river and Acme, thus assuring that the eastern end of the proposed Wilmington-to-Charlotte automobile highway will soon be a reality.

Out of a total registration of 56 votes, 50 were cast in favor of the issue and not a single ballot was cast against it. The work of improving and constructing a modern road through the township will begin, it is stated, as soon as the bonds can be floated and the other arrangements made.

The road is to extend from the western bank of the Brunswick river, through Northwest township via Malmo to Acme. Eagle Island, lying between the Brunswick river and Wilmington, is a part of New Hanover County, and with the improvement of the road between Acme and Brunswick river it is presumed that the county officials of New Hanover will take immediate steps to put the link lying between the Cape Fear and Brunswick rivers into good condition.

The route for the proposed Wilmington-Charlotte highway, from Wilmington, is via Malmo to Acme, thence about two miles to Newberlin, connecting with the highway along the railroad tracks about 10 miles to Bolton, N. C., a distance of 28 miles from Wilmington, thence to Lake Waccamaw, a distance of about 12 miles farther. This highway was completed by Columbus county convicts about three years ago, graded and ditched well, but parts of it are badly in need of repair. Columbus county has recently completed a magnificent highway from Whiteville to Chadbourn, a distance of eight miles, and proposes in the near future to continue this highway to Cerro Gordo and Evergreen, N. C.

From Evergreen the proposed route is to Boardman, thence to Lumberton, and then, via Maxton, Laurinburg, Hamlet, Rockingham, Wadesboro and Monroe, to Charlotte.

The progressive action of the citizens of Northwest Township, it is hoped, wil be followed by the citizens of the other townships with a similar action looking toward the early realization of the proposed Wilmington-Southport improved highway.

WILL BUILD GARAGE.

New Building on Second Street for Mr. C. S. Burnett.

Plans have been made by Mr. H. E. Bonitz, the architect, for a semi-fireproof brick garage to be erected at Nos. 12-14 North Second street. This will replace the structure which was partially burned some time ago and which is occupied by Mr. C. S. Burnett. Mrs. J. D. McLean is the owner of the property. The cost of the new building will be about $5,000.

Mr. C. S. Burnett will occupy the new building. It is expected that the contract will be let in a few days and work will begin immediately afterwards. Since the old building was partially destroyed several months ago, Mr. Burnett has continued to occupy the old building. He lost several automobiles in the fire.

MOTHER WANTED CHILDREN.

Husband Wished to Keep Them from Her But Judge Rountree Says No.

Seeking to get possession of her two little boys from their father, Mrs. H. W. Long, who lives near Shallotte in Brunswick county, yesterday instituted a habeas corpus action before Judge Rountree. Mrs. Long has been separated from her husband for some time and he has had possession of the boys. He lives at Mt. Tabor in Columbus county and the boys have been living with a friend.

At the court house Judge Rountree heard both sides and after considering the matter carefully granted the mother her wish and gave into her keeping the two children.

Saxon Agency Here.

Elsewhere in today's paper Mr. W. D. MacMillan, Jr., announces that he has taken the agency for the famous Saxon roadster automobile, which is just now being so extensively advertised in the magazines and newspapers. It is a full-size dependable roadster at the remarkably low price of $395 and a glance at the specifications easily shows it to be the premier low-price offering in the automobile market today. A car load of the famous little cars will be here shortly and the MacMillan garage people will be glad to talk over the proposition with anyone interested.

Banks Will Contribute $500.

The banks of the city will contribute one-half of the $1,000 fund which the business men of the city will raise for carrying on the campaign for the branch reserve bank for Wilmington, this having been decided at a meeting of the joint committee representing the Chamber of Commerce and the Clearing House Association, held Friday morning. The members of the committee which is composed of Messrs. C. E. Taylor, Jr., F. W. Dick and T. E. Cooper, representing the bankers, and Col. Walker Taylor and Mr. J. L. Sprunt, of the Chamber of Commerce, will undertake to secure the other $500 by private subscription.

Moved to New Location.

The Acme Sign Works, which was recently purchased by Mr. J. A. Collins, has been moved from its former location on Princess street to No. 8 North Third street. Messrs. John C. Geagan, recently with the Nathan System as outdoor sign painter, and Albert Cowan, an expert commercial sign painter, have accepted positions with this concern.

POLICE OUTING JUNE 25TH

Plans Are Now Being Formulated for Annual Event at Carolina Beach—Three Boats.

Thursday, June 25th, has been decided upon as the date for the annual outing and excursion of the Police department to Carolina Beach, and the members of the force are at work already to make the event this year the most successful ever conducted.

The committee on arrangements has been appointed, and is composed as follows: W. R. Applebury, chairman; J. O. Bullard, E. L. Long, E. M. Sessoms and S. H. Fulford. The members of the committee are busily engaged in working out the details for the different entertainment features to be put on in connection with the outing, and in making other preportions for the event. The other committees have not yet been appointed.

Arrangements have already been made to have the handsome steamer Wilmington make three trips to the beach on the day of the excursion, at 9 A. M., and 2:30 and 7:30 P. M.

In addition to a picnic dinner and the dancing that is always a prominent feature of the policemen's outing, a number of athletic events and contests, with probably a target shooting match, may be arranged, with prizes for the winners in the contests.

Practically every officer on the force will attend the excursion as they will all be given a holiday for the occasion. In addition the outing is always attended by many of the friends of the policemen, and numbers of the city officials and their friends also usually make it a point to spend at least part of the day at Carolina Beach.

Tickets will be placed on sale in the near future, and it is expected that the attendance will be larger this year than ever before.

THIRD WEEK OF SERVICES.

Subjects of Sermons by Mr. Haynes for the Week.

The third week of the evangelist campaign which is being conducted nightly at the big gospel tent at 11th and Market streets by Evangelist Carlyle B. Haynes will begin tonight with a meeting at which he will deliver an address on "The Great Counterfeit of Christianity." While many of these meetings have attracted large crowds, it is expected that tonight's service will be the best attended of any yet.

The subject tonight will be an explanation of the prophecy of the eighth chapter of Daniel. This prophecy will be further discussed Monday night, when the subject will be "Jesus Proven the True Messiah."

The subjects for the coming week have been announced as follows:

Tonight, "The Great Counterfeit of Christianity;" Monday night, "Jesus Proven to be the True Messiah;" Tuesday night, "The Sanctuary and Its Cleansing;" Wednesday night, "The Judgment;" Thursday night, "The Law of God"; Friday night, the Sabbath—Is It Saturday or Sunday?" Sunday night, June 14, "Who Changed the Sabbath?"

The meeting tonight will open sharply at 8 o'clock and the address will be preceded by the usual congregational song service.

TO SAVE EYES

Is the Object of This Free Prescription—Try It if Your Eyes Give You Trouble.

Thousands of people suffer from eye troubles, because they do not know what to do. They know some good home remedy for every other minor ailment, but none for their eye troubles. They neglect their eyes because the trouble is not sufficient to drive them to an eye specialist, who would, any way, charge them a heavy fee. As a last resort they go to an optician or to the five and ten cent store, and oftentimes get glasses that they do not need, or which, after being used two or three months, do their eyes more injury than good. Here is a simple prescription that every one should use:

5 grains Optona. (1 Tablet)
2 ounces Water.

Use three or four times a day to bathe the eyes. This prescription keeps the eyes clean and quickly overcomes inflammation and irritation. Weak, watery, work-strained eyes, granular lids and other similar troubles are greatly benefited and oftentimes cured by its use. Many who wear glasses have discarded them after using it for a few weeks. It is good for the eyes, and will not injure the most sensitive eyes of an infant or the aged. Any druggist can fill this prescription promptly. Try it, and know for once what real eye comfort is.

LOCAL RED CROSS SOCIETY HOLDS ITS FINAL MEETING.

The Wilmington chapter of the Red Cross Society held an important meeting in the parlors of the Colonial Inn on Thursday of the past week at which time, as has been the usual custom of chapters, it was decided to discontinue meetings during the Summer months, all matters of importance being left in the hands of the Governing Board and Directors of the Sanitorium. Various reports were read and nled among the number being that of Dr. John C. Wessell, the visiting physician, which showed nine patients now in the sanitorium, one male and one female white, three males and four females, colored. During May three patients returned to their homes very much improved. Of those now in the sanitorium only two are now confined to the bed. Two death occurred during the month.

Mrs. Brady, the head nurse reported weekly visits of the House Committee. Services on Sunday were held by Rev. Mr. Claussen, Adjt. Mataxas, Rev. Mr. Fryar and Rev. Moore, colored.

The Metropolitan Life nursing is now under the supervision of the Red Cross Society, Anna Bentley being the Red Cross nurse in charge.

A list of the donations during the month will be published in tomorrow's paper. A great deal of interest is being taken in the Sanitarium by the colored people, not only of the city, but by those living in the rural districts. During the past month these people have made several contributions of money clothing food and other articles.

HOUSE PARTY GUESTS DELIGHTFULLY ENTERTAINED

St. Pauls, N. C., June 6.—The Misses Poole have as their guests at a delightful house party Misses Bess and and Kate Blue and Jane and Bonnie McBryde, of Raeford and Misses Lucile Magette and Allie Parsons, of Wilson. They were entertained on a lovely picnic trip to Elizabethtown Wednesday. Wednesday evening from 9 to 11 o'clock the Misses Poole were at home to a large number of their friends.

Miss Maude Poole received at the door and ushered the guests into the reception hall, where they were introduced to the receiving line composed of the house party guests. Miss Ella Mae Poole then led the way to the punch bowl which was artistically arranged at one end of the vine covered porch, and was presided over by Misses Josephine Evans and Mary Belle Fisher. The guests were then escorted to the parlor where vocal and instrumental music and other features were enjoyed. The Misses Poole proved themselves unusuallly charming hostesses.

Thursday morning Miss Lattie Rhodes was at home informally to the house party guests together with a number of other young ladies. Delicious peaches, fresh from the orchard, were served. It was a most delightful occasion.

Friday evening at twilight the young men of the town gave a camp supper at McNeill's bridge. After an hour or more spent in telling stories and enjoying the feast of good things provided, the party motored to the country home of Miss Annie Jones, where delightful refreshments were served. The party returned home at a late hour after a most pleasant evening.

Misses Josephine and Pearle Evans will entertain Monday evening in honor of these attractive young ladies.

Lumina opened its ninth season last night with a dance which was attended by 600 people from the city. This was the first occasion in which the Don Richardson orchestra, of New York, had made its appearance and they proved themselves to be musicians of splendid ability. The large number dancing during the evening expressed themselves as most delighted with every selection and their appreciation was shown by warm applause.

Miss Chandler and Mr. West, dancing artists, who will be at Lumina this season, gave two demonstrations of modern dances, and were received most cordially. In their first appearance they danced the hesitation waltz and in response to the encore which they received repeated the dance. In their second appearance on the floor they danced the maxixe, a new dance in these parts. This exhibition of modern dancing was also received most cordially. Their last dance was one step, which was also done most artistically.

While the sudden change in temperature and the northeast wind that was blowing in the late afternoon kept many away, there was a good attendance and the opening was auspicious for a successful season at this popular pavilion. It was a late hour when the last of the dancers left the floor after a most pleasant evening.

Miss Chandler and Mr. West will give lessons in the modern dances at the beach this summer and those who desire to avail themselves of their instruction may see Mr. Richardson, under whose management they appear.

Mr. Don Richardson and his New York Orchestra will begin their concert engagement at Lumina today. There will no doubt be a large crowd on hand to attend both attractions at both concerts. Lumina has won a great reputation for its Sunday concerts, and it is safe to say that Mr. Richardson will more than maintain this reputation. The orchestra of this season is said to be the most capable one that has ever played at Lumina. It is composed of 11 members, all of them musicians of ability. Mr. Richardson himself is well known as a fine musician both in musical circles in New York and throughout this State. He has many friends in this City.

The orchestra which he brings with him has been playing under his direction all through the past winter in New York, and so comes to Lumina already well organized. There will be two concerts today, one at 3:30 and one at 8:30.

Below is given the programme for the night concert. No programme will be published for the afternoon concert, this being left open for request numbers from the audience, Mr. Richardson says that this plan has proved very popular in other places where he has given performances. Following is the programme for tonight:

FINANCIAL STATUS OF MONTROSE SANATORIUM

Property Worth About $70,000, Well Located.

Institution Now Taking Care of About All Patients It Can, With Present Income—Some of the Needs.

(Charlotte Observer.)

Before going farther into the affairs of Montrose Santorium as they relate to the actual service rendered in the prevention and eradication of tuberculosis in North Carolina, it is well that the physical conditions of the institution be briefly described.

According to the last inventory made December 1, 1913, when the State Board of Health took active and sole charge of the sanatorium, the total value of the lands, buildings and everything connected with the institution was $70,762.05. These figures are furnished by Mr. Warren H. Booker of the State Board of Health.

The sanatorium is located on the right hand side of the Aberdeen & Rockfish Railroad, going from Aberdeen to Raeford, and is eight miles east of Aberdeen and nine miles west of Raeford. The buildings are situated on a ridge about 550 feet above sea level and have a drainage both in front and rear. On every side there is a clear view of the country for many miles, and it is said that this is one of the rare places where the view is only bounded by the horizon.

The buildings are open to a breeze from every direction throughout the year. They are of wood construction, two stories in height and the rooms are open air, giving the patients the same privileges obtainable in absolute outdoor life without the discomforts. According to Superintendent McBrayer there is now accommodation for approximately 80 patients. The new building recently erected is the home of most of the patients—all but 10—at this time, and the others are practically unused pending a readjustment of the conduct of affairs. The patients able to walk around the grounds are in a building removed some distance from the dining room, which is in the new building. Those patients are afforded exercise by the walk to and from their meals. Under the old order they were scattered all over the grounds, many being far removed from the dining room, nurses' quarters and administration offices. The tendency; now, however, is to centralize the important departments of the institution for the sake of convenience. Several of the buildings are not in regular use, but Dr. McBrayer says that as soon as he can get things adjusted he will have every department and every class of patients properly and conveniently housed.

There is no lighting system except that furnished by kerosene oil lamps. There is running water in every building, and the new building which now houses the major portion of the patients, the administrative offices, dining room, kitchen, reception room and other departments, is furnished with hot water also, this being supplied by a heating system in the basement of that one building. The fire protection is practically nil. All of the buildings are equipped with electric light fixtures, but there are no lights. The dam which was constructed across a stream near the institution for giving electric lights, has been washed away. According to the officials, even before the dam was destroyed electric lights were not available, the power not being sufficient to light the plant. Unless some contractor agrees to replace the dam in such condition that sufficient light will be furnished in all seasons of the year, the dam will not be rebuilt. In case this is not found feasible, a gas engine will be installed, according to plans now under consideration, which will furnish the necessary electrical power.

The water for the buildings is furnished by two wells, and is pumped to the tank and from there to the buildings. This water has not sufficient pressure to afford any protection from fire, and as it stands today, every building is practically without any protection whatsoever, according to the authorities.

The land owned by the sanatorium consists of 1,238 acres, 110 of which are under cultivation. It is planned to put another 100 acres under cultivation next year, and with the co-operation of the experts of the State Department of agriculture it is hoped that enough provisions will be produced to supply the institution not only through the Summer months, but far into the Winter. A drive over the farm will show potatoes, corn, cabbage, onions and other truck growing, while there is a small orchard of pear trees and a berry farm.

The farm is under the direction of a superintendant who with two assistants looks after all of the farm work, road building, road repair work, dairy and all the other matters pertaining to a well regulated farm. Heretofore, according to the information secured, the farm has not been a paying proposition, insofar as direct results are concerned. Mr. Burgess and Mr. Hutt of the State Department of Agriculture have both visited the farm and after a through investigation have outlined a policy for crop rotation that is believed will produce satisfactory results.

One of the most interesting features connected with the farm is the dairy. This is in a good condition and furnishes ample milk for the patients. At present there are 31 cows in the herd giving milk. They have a pasture, but it is not sufficient to feed them, and large quantities of feed stuffs are bought to keep them in proper condition.

The dairy barn is in a fairly good sanitary condition, and the provisions for handling milk are in accordance with general use in the average dairies. Improvements are desired by the management, and the next Legislature will be asked to make appropriation to cover the cost. The dairy herd consists of 33 cows, seven yearlings and a blooded Jersey bull.

There has been some effort made at raising hogs, but an epidemic played havoc with the drove, leaving only a few. Right at this time little attention is being given to raising hogs, but more time will probably be devoted later on.

With scientific handling, the farm should be a source of a large part of the supplies for the institution, and much of the feed for cattle should be produced. If this can be worked out along proper lines, the actual expenses of running the sanatorium will be considerably reduced. The dairy is absolutely essential for the institution, for it enables the patients to get fresh milk which would be almost impossible if the supply had to be purchased from a distant dairy.

The place has a supply of firewood that will meet the demands for many years, if proper care is used in gathering it. The wood is not in remote places, but is readily available, and with the farm help and the use of the team, ample supply can be readily secured. The institution owns a saw and engine, which is used in getting the wood in proper shape for the big fireplaces which the buildings are provided with.

The life of the patients at the sanatorium while necessarily routine, still has enough variety to prevent the bored feeling that usually infects persons under restraint. There are restrictions, of course, but these are not burdensome, on the other hand there are many liberties and the arrangement of the wards is such that there is no occasion for lonesomeness, even to the patient whose condition prevents much exercise. There are games to be played on tables arranged in the broad open air porches; periodicals to read and perfect freedom for social intercourse. For those more able to take the exercise, there are outdoor games and the walkways over the grounds furnish splendid places for strolls.

The daily routine is about as follows: All patients able to be out are permitted to get up at 7 o'clock a. m., though this is not precisely arbitrary, as they may get up later provided they are in the dining room at 8. However, they are not permitted to arise before 7. For breakfast they have a menu that is of a high standard. They have the choice of several kinds of fruits, one of a half dozen will known cereals, an egg prepared according to order, either ham, bacon, steak or liver, and coffee, cocoa, postum or any of the usual hot drinks for breakfast.

At 10 o'clock, the bell rings, and each patient is provided with a half pint of whole milk, served either in the dining room or the wards, depending upon the condition of the patient. At 12:30 is the dinner hour, which meal is well prepared and has the variety obtained at the leading hotels. There is soup, one or two meats, four or more vegetables, milk and desert. This meal is served in individual dishes, and upon snow white linen covered tables arranged in the large, airy dining room.

At 1:30 every patient is required to go to bed for two hours rest, and the nurses are also permitted to enjoy a rest for the same length of time. This rest is required, and at 3:30 the gong again rings calling all from rest to diet, again there is a half pint of milk served. The balance of the afternoon is spent pretty much as the patients please, always, of course, under the supervision of the officials and nurses. It may be that a patient is permited to walk today and tomorrow required to remain in bed. Sometimes they are only allowed to go to the dining room once each day the other meals being served to them in bed. All of this depends upon the condition of the patients who are examined daily, and temperatures recorded thrice daily. At 6:30 a well prepared wholesome supper is served, and the early evening is spent in games, reading and conversation. At 9:30 the last milk diet of the day is served and all required to go to bed. This in gengral is the day's programme for the patients, the examination being regulated according to the condition as shown by the nurses chart of each patient.

The total cost under the present regime of maintaining the sanatorium is approximately $3,000 a month. This includes the $1,200 for all salaries and wages for the superintendent, assistant superintendent, assistant physician, seven nurses, farm superintendent and laborers, dairy and other items. The kitchen expenses approximate $400 a week or $1,200 a month, this includes every item going with the service of food, such as cooks, ice, vegetables, meats, eggs, and everything in whatsoever form connected with the dining room and kitchen. According to Superintendent McBrayer, the total cost of maintaining the institution is around $3,000 a month. To meet the expense, there is an annual appropriation of $20,000 by the State, and the balance is to be made by payment by the patients.

At the present time are 53 patients who are paying a dollar each per day, giving a revenue from this source of $1,590. The total income at this time, therefore is approximately $3,200 per month, or rather, should be. This makes no provision for incidentals, nor does it include any extensive improvements needed. Were the entire appropriation available and no improvements necessary, the institution apparently could exist as at present, though the number of patients could not be increased to any extent. However the annual appropriation, according to the officials, has been almost wiped out already, and there is an unknown outstanding indebtedness that will run possibly anywhere from $5,000 to $10,000, and it is said that the indications now are that the figures will come nearer the larger amount.

While there are no records to give accurate cost of maintaining each patient per day, an estimate made from observations and partial records kept within the past few weeks gives the daily cost to the institution for each patient at more than $1,50 and according to the officials this expense runs close to $2 per day. It is thought that with 200 patients and suitable equipment the expense can be reduced to about $1 per day, but this is a matter entirely for the future, as the present money and equipment will not accommodate more than 80 at the outside, according to the authorities.

MAD MURDERER DEFIES BUDAPEST POLICEMEN.

Killed Two and Wounded Nineteen. Surrendered to Village Priest.

Budapest, June 6.—After repulsing with heavy losses a large force of police who endeavored several times to take him, August Tomsics, a mad murderer who took refuge in the tower of the village church at Hoeflany this afternoon, surrendered to the village priest. He killed two policemen and wounded 19 others.

Tomsics took refuge in the tower of the church after he had killed a farmer and his wife and wounded their daughter. He was armed with a repeating rifle and 500 cartridges, and easily repulsed the police who, in their efforts to get to him, had to use a narrow stairway, which was the only entrance to the tower.

Tomsics killed two policemen and wounded 14 yesterday. Today five other officers were wounded. Then the village priest stepped into the breach. Within a few minutes Tomsics agreed to surrender.

THE FIGHT RENEWED.

Over Location of the N. S. Depot at Mt. Gilead.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Raleigh, N. C., June 6.—Corporation Commissioner W. T. Lee will go to Mount Gilead Monday to hear a contest between citizens and the Norfolk Southern Railroad Company about the location of the passenger station there. It seems that the railroad company decided some time ago to erect the permanent station at a point just outside the town. There were protests from citizens and then these citizens and the railroad company got together on a site nearer in town. Now other citizens come into the scrap and renew the fight for the station to be on the site originally chosen by the railroad company.

Raleigh, N. C., June 6.—On the eve of the convening of the Democratic State convention here Thursday the Just Freight Rate Association appointed a committee to go before the platform committee and urge the creation of a separate railroad commission and it is learned that after the committee heard the delegation on this subject such a plank proposed was rejected by the platform committee, only one vote for it being cast.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF A WEEK IN LUMBERTON

Robeson Crop Conditions Now Very Promising.

Good Rains General Throughout the Section—Farmers' Union to Meet. Doctors and Lawyers Taxed. Recordership.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Lumberton, N. C., June 6.—In company with Dr. Grantham, your correspondent took a 30-mile trip Thursday through Howellsville and other townships, and was gratified to find crop conditions far better than had been anticipated after hearing so much complaint of dry weather. The writer has never seen crops in better condition at this time of the year. The fields are almost as clear of grass as the sidewalks in town, and cotton and corn is growing as nicely as could be wished for. True, some cotton which was planted late is small, but it is growing rapidly.

One regretable fact is the condition of the apple trees. The writer does not remember seeing a single orchard where some of the trees—some more, some less—were not ruined with some kind of blight. Some orchards look as though fire might have gone through them. There are a good many peaches, but the apple crop is going to be short.

Reports received here indicate that good rains have fallen in different sections of the county and the outlook at this time is good for all kinds of crops.

Good rains fell in the surrounding country yesterday afternoon and last night. The rainfall was light in town, but slow, steady rain continued for several hours last night, beginning about 10 o'clock. Good showers have fallen today, and the indications are that the rains have been general throughout this section. The weather is very much cooler.

Funeral of John A. Rowland.

The funeral of Mr. John A. Rowland, whose death was reported in yesterday's Star, was conducted from the Presbyterian church at 4 o'clock this afternoon, Rev. H. G. Hill, of Maxton, officiating, assisted by Rev. J. Frank Gorrel. At the conclusion of the church service the remains were conveyed to Meadowbrook cemetery where they were laid to rest beneath a mound of flowers of many beautiful designs. The members of the Lumberton bar attended in a body, acting as honorary pall-bearers.

Farmers' Union to Meet.

A meeting of the Robeson county division of the Farmers' Union will be held in the court house in Lumberton Wednesday, June 17th. The meeting will open at 10 o'clock in the morning, and every local union in the county is earnestly requested to have delegates present, as much important business is to receive attention.

The street force that is to do the paving is making pretty good time getting all the streets torn up at one time before they begin much paving. A good many people are of the opinion that some of the paving should have been done before all the streets to be paved were torn up.

A meeting of the county Democratic executive committee was to have been held last Monday to name the date for the county primary and the amount of fees candidates are expected to pay, but for some reason the meeting was postponed until some time in July.

The Seaboard is advertising an excursion to be run from Lumberton to Wilmington and return on Saturday, June 20th, the fare for the round trip being $1. It is for white people only, and but for the fact that it is on Saturday there would doubtless be a large crowd to go. The writer is officially informed that the $1.25 rate for Sundays applies only to train No. 24, passing here at 7:35 A. M., while returning passengers can leave Wilmington on either of the afternoon trains.

Proctorville Connection Broken.

The Coast Line has changed its schedule so as to break all connections at Proctorville, which was one of the most important connections out of Lumberton. Passengers for Whiteville, Chadbourn and other points on the W. C. & A. can now make better time by going via Wilmington.

Some time last winter the Corporation Commission is said to have ordered a union station for Lumberton, to be in use April 1st, but nothing of the kind has happened yet.

Mr. J. H. Wishart, the grocer, has moved his stock into his elegant new building next door north of the Farmers' & Merchants' Bank, corner Fourth and Chestnut streets. Although Mr. Wishart has been in the grocery business for the past 12 or 15 years, he has never been so well prepared to take care of his large trade as he is now.

Mrs. Frank A. Bond, of Hunters' Lodge, who has been in the hospital since last Sunday, is very much improved and it is expected that she will be able to return home in a day or two.

Mr. T. E. Petty, traveling auditor for the Seaboard, has spent part of the week here checking up the Lumberton agency. Mr. Petty was formerly ticket agent here and has many friends who are always glad to see him come to town.

Contractor S. A. Branch, who has been sick for some time, is again able to be out. Mr. Branch says he expects in a few days to begin work on the McLean building on the lot between the Cotton Mill office building and the J. P. McNeill building.

That Automobile Ordinance.

The town authorities recently passed an ordinance prohibiting automobiles from standing on Elm street more than 15 or 25 minutes, (the writer is not sure which). One day this week a physician started off to make a call, went by his office, ran upstairs to get something and found a patient or two waiting for him. He stopped long enough to administer to their wants, and started again. When he came down stairs to resume his trip, he was pulled for allowing his car to stand on the street 25 minutes. He had to go before the recorder, where he was let off with the costs, $4.95. The writer has not heard any one condemn the law, but some think it does not go far enough and take in horses which are allowed to stand as long as the owner cares to leave the animal in any place.

Quite a number of Lumberton people attended the closing exercises of the Indian Normal School at Pembroke yesterday and say it was a great day for the Indians. It is estimated that from 1,500 to 2,000 were present and everything went off nicely. An abundant and elegant dinner was served.

Tax on Lawyers and Doctors.

At a meeting of the town fathers this week an ordinance was passed imposing a tax of $7.50 on lawyers and doctors having offices. It seems that they have been heretofore exempt from privilege tax except $5 or $10 they pay annually to the State. The town says now they must pay $7.50 sanitary tax.

Mr. E. G. Sipher, on account of failing eyesight, has been forced to give up his electrical business, much to the regret of many friends. This being a good opening, Mr. Lubin Smith has moved his electrical business from Maxton to Lumberton, and will in a short time bring his family here.

The first candy demonstrator to visit Lumberton will be at the Pope Drug Company's store Monday. Everybody is invited to go and try the goods she represents. It is stated that a ton of candy, more or less, will be given away in samples.

Misses Bonnie Barker and Hilda Weinstein, who have been students of a Baltimore conservatory of music for the past year, arrived this week to spend their vacation at home.

Political Situation Changed.

The death of Recorder John A. Rowland changes the political situation so far as the race for recorder is concerned. Mr. Rowland was a candidate to succeed himself. He was opposed by Messrs. J. P. McNeill and A. P. Caldwell. Now Mr. E. M. Britt, of the law firm of Britt & Britt, says he will be in the race. Mr. J. Ed Tyson, of Wishart's township, told the Star man yesterday that he also would announce his candidacy for recorder, in Monday's Robesonian.

On May 29th, a dog, crated, and a small box of chickens were shipped from Wallace, N. C., by express to Elizabethtown, N. C. The shipment reached Lumberton Saturday afternoon, May 30th, spent the night here and left Sunday at 9:50 A. M. for St. Pauls, where it waited until about 9 o'clock Monday night, June 1st, before starting again, and should have reached destination about midnight, being delivered to consignee Tuesday, June 2nd. It is said that Wallace and Elizabethtown are not more than 50 miles apart through the country.

Miss Susie Morgan, a charming young lady of Hertford, N. C., is visiting Miss Kitsie Proctor, Sixth and Elm streets.

Miss Ruth Keister, who had been spending several days visiting Miss Irene McLeod, left Thursday for her home at Pulaski, Va.

The little daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. A. McPhaul, who has been very sick for the past several days, is slowly improving. W. S. W.

NOMINATED FOR THE STATE SENATE.

Mr. W. B. Cooper, Prominent Wilmington Business Man and Banker, Who Was Yesterday Named in Convention Here, to Represent New Hanover and Brunswick Counties in the Upper Branch of the North Carolina General Assembly.

TO BEGIN NEW CHURCH.

First Baptist Congregation of Kinston to Spend $50,000.

Kinston, N. C., June 6.—The First Baptist congregation of Kinston will gather at the site of their new church at Gordon and McLewean streets on Monday at 5 P. M. to hold a suitable service at the beginning of the construction work. It is expected that representatives of the evangelical churches of the city will be present with greetings from their churches, and the mayor will speak for the city. The new First Baptist church will cost around $50,000.

CHAS. R. THOMAS DID NOT ENTER THE CONVENTION.

Votes Cast for Him at Goldsboro Without His Consent.

Newbern, N. C., June 6.—Ex-Congressman Charles R. Thomas has issued the following signed statement to the press:

"Please state any votes cast for me in Third District Congressional Convention were without my consent and withdrawn. My name was not presented to the convention. I sand by the primary. The votes have not been counted under the rules. The convention was not called to nominate, but to notify the action of the sovereign people expressed in the primary, and which no convention can set aside. The State committee will be called on to settle the question in the interest of the Democratic party.

WHILE BLADEN FARMERS PRAY RAIN DESCENDS

Shower Abundant and Refreshing in Clarkton Section.

(Special Star Correspondence)

Clarkton, N. C., June 5.—For the first time in nearly two months, this section was visited by a refreshing rain coming from an easterly direction Friday. It lasted for about an hour and a half, and was abundantly sufficient to satisfy the many who were anxiously watching the heavens.

Prayer meetings were being held in the surrounding communities, where prayer for rain was offered. One of the rural letter carriers reported that the farmers along a certain portion of his route Friday laid down their tools and gathered themselves in prayer for rain.

—Friends will be glad to learn that Mr. Lee Greer, who underwent an operation at Harper's Sanitarium on last Tuesday for appendicitis, is getting along nicely and expects to be out again within a few days.

SEGREGATION OF RACES IN OWNERSHIP OF LAND

By DR. H. Q. ALEXANDER, President, North Carolina Farmers' Union.

Because the officals of the North Carolina Farmers Union have not been aggressive in urging the question of land segregation between the races, that is, allowing white people to set apart some communities exclusively for white ownership, as was unanimously endorsed by our last State Convention, I find that some people in the towns have supposed that the farmers are not in earnest about the matter. In fact, since the question was omitted from the program of the Raleigh mass meeting, and since the Supreme Court has decided that the city of Winston-Salem must get special authority in order to enforce a segregation ordinance, one of our State papers, together with such social equality negro papers as the New York Age, have expressed the opinion that this question will not be pressed for solution.

To all such I wish to say that this is a vital, living problem as long as North Carolina has a large rural population that would preserve for its posterity a white civilization in rural communities. There are thousands of patriotic countrymen who will advocate and press this question until it shall be settled to the saving of white communities and the protection of our homes and our women and children, and that too with benefit rather than detriment to the negro.

The idea of segregation of races in land ownership is not our cities. What is now done in cities without law will in a few years be done in town and country as prescribed by the law. And is the law route not the better way? Cannot a wise and conservative legislature find a more equitable way than an irritated populace might adopt?

If there is a demand for segregation in the cities, where the terrors of darkness flee before the electric light and armed police try to protect both day and night, how much greater the need for it to the isolated country home, without the protection of lights or police, or the proximity of neighbors?

And this is for physical safety. But it is hardly more important, in fact, it is less important because the danger is less imminent, than the life, growth and efficiency of the country church and school which are threatened in a great many rural sections by the permanent sandwiching of the two races as land owners in the same communities.

The highest development of a rural people can only be obtained by and through the harmonious co-operative efforts of all citizens. This will never obtain in a community that is half white and half black. They cannot work together in solving community problems without social equality.

White farmers are only asking that they be granted the privilege of segregating themselves, that when they have spent all they have and perhaps years of labor in providing a home for their families in white communities, that they may have a guarantee that it will remain a white community.

The same privilege should be granted the negroes in districts where they own a majority of the land, as they do in some sections. We are willing to do justice by both races by prescribing that not more of the area of the State shall be set apart to either race than is represented by the population of each race.

Take a glance at North Carolina. The negroes constitute 32 per cent. of the total population. Fourteen counties have a negro population of from 50 to 60 per cent. while forty three counties have a negro population of from 25 to 50 per cent. With this large representation throughout the greater part of the State, and with thousands of acres of land held by corporations and large individual landholders, there would be no danger of the thrifty, economical negro being shut out from owning land. In fact, we believe that segregation would be a benefit to the negro race as well as the white race. No race will ever securely and permanently establish itself in the economic world until it has learned initiative and self dependence. As a race the negro has not yet learned to launch out and steer his own bark. He looks to the landlord and time merchant for his daily bread, just as his father expected to be fed from the crib and smokehouse of his master. If settled in districts set apart for his race, he would be thrown more upon his own resources, or the counsel of his kind, and this would beget a community spirit that would develop the individual while promoting the welfare of the community.

But it is for the benefit of the white race that we advocate segregation and we mention the benefits that we believe would accrue to the negro only to show that we are not actuated by unfair prejudice. Believing as we do that all intelligent, thoughtful men will agree that the best interests of the State and of the South will be promoted by a white rural civilization, let us look at some census figures and see if we are not justified in agitating this question.

Race amalgamation is on the increase. In 1850 mulattoes constituted 11 per cent. of the negro population; 12 per cent. in 1870; 21 per cent. in 1910. Black negroes have increased 81 per cent. in the last 40 years; mulattoes 251 per cent. In North Carolina 38 per cent. of the negroes are mulattoes. Segregation would tend to mitigate this evil.

Tenantry is on the increase in both races but the advantage is to the negro with only 21 per cent. while white tenantry has increased 28 per cent during the last ten years. In North Carolina the total number of farm operators increased during the last 30 years 61 per cent. tenant farmers increased 103 per cent. the increase being greater with white farm tenants than negro tenants. The negro farmer has gained on the white farmer proportionately in land ownership, the increase in the last ten years reaching more than a million acres in North Carolina and more than sixteen million acres in the Southern States. Booker Washington boasts that in every state in Dixie east of the Mississippi river, except Florida, negro farmers gained in proportion over white farmers. Will any one dare to say that the negro farmer is outstripping the white farmer because of his superior character and greater ability? I trow not. He has not done so in any other line of industry. No, he can live cheaper than the white man, who in order to compete with the negro must either adopt his lower standard of living, or else increase his efficiency and productiveness over that of the negro. This is not easily done, because in the disorganized condition of the farmer and under present methods of financing and marketing, the white farmer is as helpless as the negro farmer in fixing prices on the products of his labor. A high protective tariff was maintained against foreign manufacturers, ostensibly to protect American labor, but the white farmers of the South have been subjected to an equally destructive competition.

The city man of wealth and leisure, of course, may see no need of a rural segregation. His community is well protected and he does not stop to consider others not so fortunately situated. Some real estate speculators in the towns may oppose segregation because it might interfere with their privilege of buying lands in rural communities and selling or renting without regard to the welfare of the community. This leads me to say that I do not think segregation should apply to domestic servants, or to croppers or tenants on lands occupied or managed by the owner. The owner thus forms a part of the community life and must share alike with his neighbors in existing evils.

Some large landholding farmers too, who live in town and care very little for the country except as a souce of dividends, may oppose segregation. Some business men may oppose segregation from fear that business might be hurt. They forget that the promoting of the welfare and happiness of men, women and children is of far greater importance than any business. But there are thousands of patriotic, public spirited men in every profession and calling, who recognize the fact that something must be done to improve farm life conditions; that rural life may be made more interesting and attractive and thus help to keep the boys and girls on the farm.

We would appeal to all men to study this question without prejudice, that a solution may be reached that is just and fair. Under present conditions we are subjecting a large per cent of our white population to a life that our town people would not submit to. Try to imagine yourself in the place of your less fortunate brother just to find how you would like it. This is a conservative movement. It will permanently adjust economic and social relations between the races, and in the end be a blessing to both.

Who will enlist under the banner "A white Civilization for the Rural South"?

he was a little boy he was very fond of using long words and when a very young man he met Mark Twain on board ship. Young Henderson gave him an article he had just written and asked for his criticism. Later, Mark Twain said, as he returned it, that he had enjoyed reading it very much, but that he had to keep the dictionary by him the entire time. As he grew older, the writer soon realized that great words do not always contain great thoughts. He and the humorist became fast friends and one of his best works bears the title, 'Mark Twain.' Another book for which he is especially noted is 'George Bernard Shaw, His Life and Work.' While in England the author was entertained by the Shaw family, who were very much interested in this man, now one of America's foremost critics. Dr. Henderson, at present professor of Pure Mathematics at the University, has just published another book, 'Modern Dramatics,' which is meeting international approval. With his opportunities and youth, is it not possible that in time he may exceed even my fondest expectations?" the mother asked, her eyes shining with pride. Then, glancing up, she exclaimed:

"But, Oh, I must not sit here selfishly musing over my treasures.' Her fingers sought the remaining beads.

"Among these are the ones belonging to Wiley, Mims and to Connor, who as Secretary-Treasurer of the North Carolina Historical Association is devoting his time not so much to his own writings as to preserving the works of my other literary sons. While it is yet early morning I shall go forth and show my jewels to everyone. To some who do not care, they will appear only ordinary amber beads, but to those appreciative souls, who love the writings of my sons, in every bead will be reflected the character of the man who won it."

The sun shone brighter, the fluffy baby clouds chased each other across the blue sky, the soft wind floated through the pines, and the arbutus raised its tiny head out of the grass as, placing the chain with its wonderful burden about her neck, North Carolina started on her journey of love.

A NECKLACE OF AMBER BEADS

(By Athalia Rankin Bunting.)

(The following paper on North Carolina Writers was written by one of the recent graduates of the Wilmington High School who entered the first grade and took the regular course which the school system of this city has to offer. The work is entirely her own and was handed in as a part of the regular requirement in English. The paper possesses a good deal of merit and is especially interesting as containing a series of short biographical sketches of North Carolina writers.—Editor's Note.)

"'Tis indeed a most beautiful necklace," said North Carolina, as in her extended hands she held the ends of a golden chain on which were strung a number of amber beads, each separated from the others by several golden links. In the morning sunlight, each bead glowed as though it held at least one of the sun's rays captive within its transparent walls.

"For years have I carefully saved bead after bead, as my sons, having given many busy hours to win them, have come, each bringing his token of labor rewarded, and laid them in my outstretched hands. Now that the collection is great enough, I have strung them on this golden chain of Fame, and possess such a necklace as Columbia herself would not scorn some day to wear about her peerless neck."

She seated herself under a large pine and, her gaze chancing to fall on an exceptionally clear bead, she examined it tentatively. Within the yellow sphere many figures were plainly visible to her loving eyes—animals, laughing children, Christmas trees, dainty Southern ladies and country gentlemen of the "old school," smiling darkies, and freckle-faced newsboys. Holding the beads in her fingers she softly whispered:

"Isaac Erwin Avery, one of my sweetest sons, a true lover of human nature, always having a kind, cheerful word for everyone. He was made for a newspaper man," she laughed, remembering how at first he studied law in college, but how, even there, his literary talent showed itself, and he was made editor of "The Trinity Archive."

She continued—"giving up his idea of defending prisoners in stirring speeches before thrilled audiences, he entered his newspaper career in his home town as editor of the 'Morganton Herald.' Then he was connected with 'The North China Daily News,' after which employment he obtained a position as an editor of the 'Charlotte Observe,' remaining in this occupation until his early death in 1904." A happy but wistful smile crossed her lips as she seemed to see her son once more at his desk in the busy Charlotte office, preparing in his simple, broad-minded style, his "Idle Comments" with rapid pen, transferring the world around him to his paper. Drawing a tiny bunch of early violets from her girdle, the mother kissed them tenderly.

"How he loved you!" she whispered, and the bead, accompanied by a little sigh, slipped gently into its place.

As though from habit, her fingers sought the center ball, a bead reflecting soft, mellow lights, soothing to tired eyes. Fondly she held it, while within she saw glimpses of white cotton fields, crowing babies and crooning negro mammies; figures with faces wearied by sickness; anxious mothers with features worn by toil, holding their babies close within their sheltering arms; little birds beating wildly against prison bars, or sitting forlornly on their perches, too miserable to utter their liquid notes; pleading lovers and rosy maidens, and, apart from these, a "little white bride", hesitating as though fearing to enter into her new life, uncertain of the future.

"John Charles McNeill," she murmured, busy with her thought, "another would-be lawyer led astray into the fields of imagination—like Avery on staff of 'Charlotte Observer'—remainder of life consecrated to his writing two charming books, his famous 'Lyrics from Cotton Land' and 'Songs Merry and Sad'. 'Tis strange that he and Avery, my beloved sons, both started with a certain profession, to turn to writing, both editors for the same paper, writing of the South, possessing similar traits of character, love of nature and the quality of sympathy, and dying within three years of each other when they were so young, only thirty-three. If only I might see him again," she sighed, then softly to herself she quoted: "Thine arm would hold him tenderly to prove
How thine eyes brimmed with love,
And thy dear hand with all a mother's care
Would rest upon his hair."

A pause followed, during which her fingers released the bead and slipped to the two nearest, one on either side. She glanced at one of these.

"Another lawyer!" and she laughed merrily. "These sons of mine make me think of little boys who, starting out to play 'Fox and Hounds,' discover a sunny orchard in which are trees loaded with luscious apples. They become so interested in this treasure that their intended sport is forgotten, while they are striving to climb to the top of the trees, where the fruit is largest and sweetest. Thus it was with Theophilus Hill. He had opened the great gate and was thinking of the chase which he was soon to join when delighted cries, which could come only from the throat of happy boys, attracted him, and, in a flash, he was with them in one of the highest trees. Among the fruit which he secured were two beautiful apples, one of which he called 'Hesper' and the second 'The Passion Flower and Other Poems.' As he sat in the top of the tree, polishing these, he heard a firm voice, which he knew must be obeyed, calling him Home, bidding him not to finish his work, but to come at once." Her left hand dropped to her lap, and, peering into the other bead, a brooding sense of restfulness came over her, as she beheld the scene within, tall long-leaf pines bathed in silver moonlight, such a place as that was where —"the jasmine burns her golden lamps and holds her court
And garlands with green festoons the dark lagoon."
Here was the shining Yadkin, over whose banks trailed vines, laden with purple muscadines, and, in the distance, nestling among the shadows, the little Moravian churchyard of Salem—place of peace.

"Writing was always the chief work of John Henry Boner," she reflected. "He was editor of Salem and Asheville newspapers and spent many years in New York, as editor of 'The New York World,' 'The Century Dictionary,' and 'Literary Digest.' He published two volumes—'Whispering Pines,' and 'Boner's Lyrics.' He was always melancholic to a certain degree, but, he was my sweetest lyric poet, singing of life and death, love and faith, hope and despair, joy and patriotism, of his boyhood days and the beloved churchyard in Salem where he now lies, 'the wanderer back home' in his 'man-loved land'."

For a few moments she sat thinking; then her fingers touched another bead, a bead of strange appearance, for it seemed a mixture of sunshine and shadows, the sunshine uppermost, but the shadows always underneath, showing through in places. Inside, the mother saw a typical New York street scene, the cars, the taxis, the traveling salesman and shop girls, the street gamins, all the rush and push of the great city. She sighed, saying:

"O. Henry always seemed pathetic to me; walking through a crowded street, such as this, he was lonely; for, although he loved the noise and bustle and understood the people of the street, 'his people,' the dwellers in the East Side, there was always a lonely spot in his heart, a remoteness in his nature which was never erased, and, in his works, there was ever an underlying note of tragedy mixed with his gaiety. William Sidney Porter was his real name, and although his literary talent was marked from his youth, in his letters from Texas to his Carolina friends, he was, besides being a writer, a ranchman, a fruit grower, and very much of a wanderer. It was wonderful how he could set out deliberately to compose a plot and would take some insignificant object around which to weave a story. And he had a great way of telling his tale in calm, dignified language, and, where least expected, throwing in a dash of slang. Sometimes, it was really dreadful how he jolted his readers. He was always in debt, although he hated it, and the last part of his life was spent in trying to pay his bills. He shut himself up for days, shunning the society of man, and died before the climax of his literary career had been reached. Today his works are exceedingly popular and are now being sold by the set with Kipling's thrown in."

Picking up a clear, strong bead and gazing within, she saw the early settlers from the Barbadoes, landing in the lower Cape Fear region; the struggles which they had while founding a town and so on, in the history of that most attractive and most romantic section.

"Here is a man who, entering the law profession, not only remained true to his work, took an active part in the Civil War, being one of the first two Senators to the Confederate Congress and a loyal Southern soldier, but wrote a most interesting book, 'Early Men and Times of the Lower Cape Fear,' besides many wonderful orations and biographical sketches. There were three characteristics in the literary style of Hon. George Davis: first, his historical references were always exceedingly accurate and minute; second, he possessed a wonderful imagination whose interpretation of a historical subject kept the account from being dry; and third, he always knew how to place the right word in the right place. In Wilmington, his home, the Daughters of the Confederacy recently erected a beautiful oronze statue of this son of mine who, at the time of his death, in 1896, was 'the most eminent citizen and best beloved man in North Carolina; not only for the writings which he gave the people, and the way in which he served his native South, but most of all, for his beautiful character is he loved and honored by all. 'To be thus remembered is to be blessed indeed.'

"More scenes in the Cape Fear region," said the mother, looking into the next bead. "I am glad that I placed this one here, not only because I am in the mood to see other happenings along this line, but because the Hon. George Davis and Colonel Alfred Moore Waddell spent many, many years in Wilmington, were lawyers, orators, historians, prominent men in the Civil War and in public affairs. Among the works for which Colonel Waddell is noted are 'North Carolina in the French and Indian War' and 'A Colonial Officer and His Times.'

"And also," she said, touching a bead all sunshine, "except for not having lived in Wilmington, Zebulon Baird Vance corresponds with the other two in these particulars. Generations and generations ago, there was a European family, called Vance in Ireland, Vauz in Scotland and England and DeVaux in France. The members were kings, princes, dukes, counts and lords on the Continent, and when a branch from Normandy came to America, they were loyal soldiers and gallant officers in the Revolutionary War and played important parts in affairs of interest to Virginia as well as to my beloved State. Among these was Dr. Robert Vance, who, fatally wounded in a duel, chose as his dying words those of Shakespeare, 'Out, brief candle.' His brother, David Vance the Second, married Margaret Baird, a girl of an active, quick-witted, business-like family. Zeb Vance, the son of this marriage, was a worthy successor of these two lines, inheriting their ready wit, capability for holding public office and strength of character, for, 'as a writer, a humorist and an orator he was in the front rank of the foremost men of his day,' and whether as a plain citizen, lawyer, Senator or Governor, the people of his State knew and appreciated his devotion to them and they loved him for it. 'They were ever ready to follow where he led.' He was noted for his sense of humor and he could no more help bubbling over with wit than he could breathe without air. Once, while he was a members of the Dialectic Society at the University, for half an hour he devoted himself to saying everything funny that popped into his head. Everyone else was convulsed, while he kept such a straight face that when the others were fined for laughing out loud and created disorder he had not broken a single rule. Likewise, in court, when Vance was speaking it was impossible to keep silence. He did not use his wit just for idle pleasure, but with it managed many critical situations, giving the needed diversion when the air was tense. For example, during the battle of Malvern Hill, his soldiers, anxiously awaiting orders, were keyed up to the highest pitch. Just then a rabbit scurried in front of the troops, and Vance, yelling, 'Run, Molly Cottontail, if I didn't have any more reputation to lose than you, I'd run too,' diverted the soldiers and renewed their courage.

"To Vance alone belong the honor of having been thrice elected Governoo of his State. That shows how worthy he was of all the love that the people gave him. And one day in '94, when his cheerful words and sparkling wit ere no longer heard, they gave him such a funeral as no other American, save possibly Jefferson Davis, had ever had."

Picking up the nexa bead she spoke gently:

"This was won by a son of mine who belongs to me in every way, except in the matter of birth, but"—then she smiled "He came to me when only a baby and has been such a joy ever since. From the time he arrived in America he has lived in Wilmington and has endered himself to the inhabitants, young and old, rich and poor. He has succeeded in business, winning quite a fortune, from which he is ever contributing to charitable purposes and to any organization whose object is to improve and beautify the city.

"In this bead I see the loer Cape Fear region again, and James Sprunt is one wno isespecially fitted for writing on the subject, for he has always taken such an interest (as he has shown) in the 'Traditions of the Lower Cape Fear.' She laughed as she saw her foster son among the pupils of Mr. Jewitt's noted academy in Wilmington during the '50's.

"He wrote a most interesting sketch of the school life in that seat of learning, entitled 'Old School Days in Wilmington.' One incident which he mentions in this excellent word picture is most amusing, as it tells how one day, while keeping time to the lusty rendition of 'Scotland's burning! Scotland's burning! F-i-r-e! F-i-re!'" Mr. Jewett marked time with his great hand bell, thus raising such a clamor that the entire hook and ladder force turned out to discover and pour water, and I am especially glad that, unlike the fate of so many writers, his works are oeing admired and appreciated, while he is living to enjoy the well deserved applause.

"My University presidents," she mused, clasping two beads in her strong white hands: "Kemp Plummer Battle from Franklin county, and Edward Anderson Alderman, of Wilmington. The former entered the University when he was only 13 and graduated at an age when most boys are preparing to enter, receiving first distinction in his class, the highest marks in all of his examinations, and during the four years having been elected to every office in the Dialectic Society. He has been president of his Alma Mater, and after the war, when the University was re-opened he was one of the most energetic workers in this undertaking. His writings consist mostly of biographical, historical and literary addresses and many sketches, the securing of the facts for which required painstaking labor. But, besides being famous for his splendid writings, he is noted for the great influence, for the high uplifting ideals, which he has successfully exercised on his many students. He is a noble son of whom I may well be proud.

"Edwin A. Alderman is very much on the same order. As a student he was exceedingly bright, and has been President of Tulane University from which he graduated. Then, too, his brilliant works are in the same vein as Battle's. I was very glad to lend him to my sister, Virginia, to be president of her chief University, knowing that he is a son who will always do credit to his mother in whatever surroundings he may be, and one who is excellently fitted for this position in that most venerable institution of high standards."

Her fingers caressed another bead, and in a reminiscent tone she spoke:

"Henry Jerome Stockard has been assistant in the English department at the University and Fredericksburg College, professor of this same subject at the University; professor of Latin at Peace Institute, President of this school, and has contributed often to many prominent magazines. His sonnets are considered excellent, although he has published but one volure of poetry—'Fugitive Lines.'

"Thro' the lifting haze rise the braver
days
That the untried seasons hold."

"Educational work," she said, catching sight of the next two beads, "Addresses to school children, committees and boards of education. Walter Hines Page and Clarence Poe have always been greatly interested in campaigns of this sort, besides their work with many well-known papers and magazines. They are active, broad-minded Americans, and Page certainly deserves his present position as Ambassador to Great Britain, while Poe is one whom I am glad to have at home with me to help attend to affairs here."

At first she was obliged to look closely to make anything at all out of the confusion in the next bead, crowds were everywhere, some eagerly thronging the streets in front of the theatres, where hung signs in electric lights, displaying the name "The Clansman"; others clustered around a prominent figure, who was holding his enthusiastic hearers with his words, delivered in his clear, forceful style. In the background, unthought of, unheeded, was an empty law office and a deserted pulpit.

"Thomas Dixon, Jr.," she said, restlessly tossing the bead up and down. Touching a clear, bright drop of amber, the mother smiled.

"Archibald Henderson, one of my most promising sons. Already he has a splendid reputation in America and Europe and his articles appear in five languages. He is the product of a wonderful inheritance, for back of him are very many intellectual people on both sides of his family. His father is an ex-Congressman of literary tastes, who has a fine library which, no doubt, nurtured his son's love of reading, while Mrs. Henderson is a very clever woman and a perfect Southern hostess in every sense of the word. His uncle, Professor Cain, of the University, is an excellent mathematician, Archibald following him in this line. Mrs. Cain, the grandmother, one of those dainty little women with quaint white curls, looking as though she belongs in an old-fashioned garden of mignonettes, rosemary, sweet william and heartsease, possesses a remarkable intellect, and it is she who laid the foundation of Archibald's education, teaching him until he was 10 or 11. His great-great-grandmother, the subject of an article, 'Elizabeth Maxwell Steele, Patriot,' written by her great-great-grandson, was the owner of those pictures made famous by Nathaniel Greene, and it was she whom General Tarleton, the scar on his face the souvenir of a wound made by Washington showing plainly, addressed, saying: 'General Washington is a man of no education. Why, I suppose he cannot even write his name.' 'He may not be able to write his name, General Tarleton, but I see that he has made his mark,' replied Elizabeth Steele. Is it little wonder that with such ancestors Archibald Henderson has made himself famous?

"Another factor whose value cannot be measured in making a great man is an ideal home setting. This the Henderson home has always been, ever having a happy congenial atmosphere.

"Archibald graduated from the University at the head of his class, has won degrees and belongs to many important societies. From the time

COMMENCEMENT DAYS IN CHINESE CHRISTIAN SCHOOLS

Flowers, Songs, Addresses and Diplomas Are Features, as They Are in America—Sunday School in Manila—President of Chinese Republic Places Two of His Daughters in Christian Mission School—Pekin's Alert Commissioner of Education Advises His Officials to Send Their Children to Mission Schools.

By Southern Missionary News Bureau.

The Effie Sears Memorial School at Pingtu, China, closed its year's work recently. Following is a description of the interesting program at the close of the school:

The school has steadily increased in numbers, character and scholarship. All over the country its graduates are teaching and preaching. The only teachers employed in the c ity government school here, are two of our first graduates. Each Sunday they may be seen leading a band of their pupils (all from heathen homes) to services in our chapel and to the afternoon service in our school. This spring I have one hundred and eight girls. Many more applied out on account of lack of room could not be taken. I want to tell you about our last commencement exercises when five young women between the ages of 21 and 28 were graduted and given diplomas.

"The school had been transformed into a bower of beauty—decorated with flags and Chinese lanterns; also gaily colored festooning made by the students. On Monday afternoon, before an audience which left not an inch of standing room ecven, an entertainment entitled "Christmas in Many Lands" was given by fifteen of the high school girls. Each represented a country and with distinct enunciation and graceful gesture, told the story of how Christmas was celebrated in her country. Interspersed were a number of carols, all of which were sung entirely from memory, and in two parts. This was the first time that these girls had ever attempted, or the Chinese here seen anything of the kind. They surprised and entertained all next morning at 9 a. m., when an even larger audience assembled—this being made possible by seating guests on the windowsills. The program was fine.

"Then came the distribution of the diplomas, the parting songs of school to graduates and graduates to school, words of exhortation from Pastor Key and the benediction.

All were much impressed by the oratories and by the singing of the girls. Parents, too, were actually delighted at the demonstration of what Christians can do for their daughters.

Sunday School in Manila.

Ellinwood School for Girls, Manila, P. I., has had the joy of graduating its first class of three young woman. Two of them continue on as assistnt teachers and the third has become an evangelist's wife.

As avery Sunday school work has been much emphasized and the girls have taught in four open-air Sunday schools and assisted in the singing in two open-air evangelistic services. Many former students are now scattered through the provinces where they are doing faithful and effective work among women and children and the girls from the school are sent out each year through the Tagalog provinces to help in the Christmas program.

This year special visits to a large number of towns were made in place of the provincial classes and Miss Bartholomew took some of her girls and went from town to town with the pastors and evangelists. Much good came out of this effort. Thirty towns in all were visited, and of one she writes:

"The best organized Sunday school we found was at Amadeo in Cavite mountains, where one of last year's graduates resides and she trained the teachers for the children's classes. The morning we visited this school, the attendance was 117 and the collection, pesos, 194. There were thirteen classes, seven for children under 12 years, graded according to age, the girls taught by young ladies and the boys by young men. The three classes of little girls marched out of the chapel at the beginning of the lesson hour and went to a house nearby where there was plenty of room for the proper teaching of the lesson. The four boys' classes went to another house, leaving in the chapel two adult classes of men, two of women, and of younger men and one of young women. In the afternoon the seven children's classes met at 3 o'clock with their regular teachers for the study of the catechism, and all the teachers and a few of the adult members met at 4 for the study of Huribut's teacher-training lessons."

It is becoming more and more evident that girls who are able to take the English Bible course prove far more efficient than those who are able to handle studies in the dialect only, and a higher standard for admission is, therefore, being insisted upon.

Centenary of New Zealand Missions.

In 1814, the first C. M. S. missionaries landed in New Zealand, and during the one hundred years that have since elapsed what were literally "cannibal islands" have been transformed into one of the great dominions of the British empire. In 1809 the church missionary society took leave of the first missionaries. A passage was obtained for them in the transport ship, Ann., which sailed for Sydney, in August, 1809, and reached Port Jackson in the following February. There they took passage in a whaling ship going to New Zealand, and eventually arriving there in December, 1814, five years and three months after leaving England! Another year and three months passed before the society at home heard of the settlement being founded. For eleven years there were no baptisms, and it was not until 1839 that the first public baptismal service for adults was held. Then followed the marvelous movement which resulted in almost the whole Maori nation being brought under Christian instruction and civilizing influences, and which led the first bishop, George Augustus Selwyn, on his arrival in his new diocese, in 1842, to write: "We see here a whole nation of pagans converted to the faith."

Yuan Shih Kai and Christian Schools

Yuan Shih Kia, president of the chinese republic, has recently placed two of his daughters in a Peking mission school. Why? Because like other discerning men of affairs in China, he recognizes that the Christian schools are far superior to those under government control.

The failure of the latter is explained by the attempt to work from the top downward. In the province of Kiangsi, for instance, there are no efficient primary and intermediate schools conducted along modern lines.

Peking's alert commissioner of education is advising his fellow officials to send their children to mission schools.

Lack of room in the Methodist boarding school at Nanchang makes necessary the turning away of pupils almost every day. Many of these boys belong to official or wealthy families.

One government officer on leaving his boy at the day school, said to him, "I have brought you here because I believe it is the best school in the city. One thing you must be careful to remember. These Christians are different from the rest of the Chinese. When they teach the Bible and the facts about their religion, I want you to give especial attention so that you may learn what it is that makes them different."

If the Christian church will provide efficient educational facilities it will do much to supply the demand for teachers in the government schools and thus meet one of China's greatest needs.

Medical Work in India.

A dispensary report from Lahore, India, shows a total of 9,304 visits. In the report Mrs. Dass makes some statements which are characteristic and typical of this work:

"Many of our patients have shown a great desire to hear the scriptures and the hymns sung, and some of them have taken portions of scripture home to have their little boys read to them, and they have asked our prayers for their husbands that their hearts may be turned to our Lord bands. A lot of our women come and Savior, for it is almost impossible in our country for women to become Christians without their husbands. A lot of our women come from villages where they do not get any medical aid, and amongst these are some who come only to hear the scriptures and the hymns and they sit through the whole time listening.

"These village women are very simple, and at times misunderstand our directions. One woman was given a cough medicine to take every four hours. The third day she came back saying it had done her no good, although she had rubbed it on her neck until the skin had come off. We often hear the women say that they have great faith in our medicines, and get well so soon, because we always ask God's blessing at the beginning of each day."

Street Chapel Work in China

Yesterday our tent workers returned from two weeks' work in the east. They pitched tent and preached and sold books in five different towns, remaining one to five days in each. They report large crowds and earnest attention. They did well in selling books.

We have recently completed a book room and a street chapel on a main business street. We have put into it one of the men who was baptized last spring to sell books and talk to the people. He was once a story-teller in one of the very busy marts down by the river. He was a vegetarian and worshipped many gods and often. He is a fluent speaker, and holds a crowd remarkably well. He knows the story of the atoning work of Christ quite well, and is rapidly gaining in general Bible knowledge.

The chapel will seat fifty or more, and generally it is filled about four or five times each day with people who sit and listen frequently two hours, though some stay only a few minutes. We frequently have more standing outside than are sitting inside. Already quite a number have become regular attendants on Sunday from having heard there. Probably at least two thousand different persons heard the message there during the first month the chapel was opened, and many heard many times. Will all readers pray a special blessing on this dear man and this tent and chapel work?—G. P. Bostick.

Lowering the Flag of Paganism.

A striking incident is related by Rev. William Peters of the North India Methodist mission:

"Recently I visited the work on Ujhani circuit where lives an old Hindu more than seventy years of age. All his life he had been an idolator and had done everything in his power to prevent the spread of Christianity. He built a great heathen altar in front of his house and hoisted over it a large pagan banner. Revival meetings were held by the Christians in his village. The power of God took hold of his soul and he pulled down his flag, broke down the altar, and with all his heart accepted Jesus Christ as his Saviour."

MOSTLY CONTEMPLATIVE

By T. W. Chambliss.

Man it to do his part manfully and combat the idea that his fate is fixed. He should not fold his hands in resigned inaction but go forward with all of the energies of life set to carry out the purposes of life. The message is a call to work as the prelude and accompaniment of enjoyment. The true meaning of the statement is confirmed by such statements as these: "If any man would not work neither should he eat." "I must work the works of him that sent me when it is day: the night cometh when no man can work:" "As we have opportunity let us do good unto all men."

Man's work should be deliberately chosen. It should be voluntarily undertaken, not reluctantly endured. It should be the work of one whose hands are outstretched in search of employment. Man's labors should not be restricted either as to number, character or sphere. The ideal man will put his hand to every sort of work that is placed providentially within his way. Time and ability must, necessarily, be taken into consideration.

Man should energetically perform every task. Earnestness is an indispensible condition of acceptable service. Fitful and intermittent effort is condemned as is also half-hearted and indifferent service. There is one reason given here for earnest labor which is worth more than a passing thought. The inhabitants of the under world are forever done with the activities of earth. No work in the grave whither thou goest. Hence the urgency of effort each day. After all the secret of all success, secular or religious, is the doing of the day's work and doing it today. Leave tomorrow for itself. If it comes—meet it with the same earnest effort.

Man should strive to do the duty which lies nearest at hand, to the man who is earnest about the matters of life the duties which are most urgent will lie nearest. Three duties are apparent and should have the same earnest effort. It is surely important that every individual attend to the preservation of the body. The body is needed for the proper achievment of an ideal life. Take care of it. Then there is the cultivation of the mind. With a well-cared for body and a well-equipped mind man can start for the goal of life. There is no excuse these days for a mind uncultivated and untrained. The opportunity is ever present. Man may be moneyless but he can reach knowledge without money. It is not a matter of dollars but a matter of desire and determination.

The care of the body and the cultivation of the mind is not all however. There is the soul and it demands attention. One of the first duties presenting itself to the thoughtful man is the giving of attention to the soul's needs. Remembering that this life's period is brief at best and very uncertain each and every man should be very sure that the soul is ready for the call of eternity. To often man waits until the call comes and then hurriedly attempts to prepare spiritually. This is leaving a part of today's work undone. "Today is the accepted time—today is the day of salvation." Let each man put his house in order today. Give it careful and prayerful attention. Many heartaches would be avoided if this course were followed.

Too many men in this world spend more time telling what they intend to do than would be required to do some of the things. It is the man who "does' that counts. Whatsoever your hand finds to do—DO IT. Be willing to do those things for which you have the ability. It is perfectly natural for us to look for the success of those who are highly endowed, and who have employed and developed their gifts. But every man can develop some gift—the one talent man could have used the talent. His crime consisted in not developing it. It is not the swift runner who always reaches the goal. Too often it is the bold warrior who dies on battle field. You may be a plodder—if so—go forward steadily and win.

There is time and chance for every man. Use the time and grasp the change. Wait not for another and a better but use the one that is present and tomorrow may bring another. If you had money you would do big things. Do the little things and do them today and do them well. What is the conclusion of the matter? Do heartily and well all that lies within our power. Clean, well kept body, cultivated mind and trusting, saved soul and it is a successful life. Service? Yes a life of service, devoted to God and the other man.

TEN THOUSAND MEN ON STRIKE.

Employes of Westinghouse Companies Walked Out Last Night.

Pittsburg, June 5.—Ten thousand workmen employed by the Westinghouse interests in the plants of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, the Westinghouse Machine Company and the Pittsburg Motor Company at East Philadelphia, went on strike tonight. Not a wheel in the vast electrical works moved during the afternoon.

Delegates fro each of the 60 departments held a meeting tonight to consider extending the strike to other industries. The Allegheny Congenial Industrial Union, an organization formed last Februarq, has members employed by the Rankin and Edgar Thompson plants of the Carnegie Steel Company, the Union Switch & Signal Company and the McClintic Marshall Construction Company. Delegates representing this membership conferred with the Westinghouse strikers today as to what action they should take and were advised to continue at work.

Washington, June 5.—The Senate today adopted a joint resolution for the appointment of five Senators and five Representatives to attend the unveiling in Hollywood Cemetery, at Richmond, Va., of a monument over the grave of former President John Tyler.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson XI.—Second Quarter, For June 14, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Luke xviii, 9-14; xix, 1-10—Memory Verses, 19, 10—Golden Text, Mark ii, 17—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Perhaps there are no people more difficult to deal with or to live with than those who, like the Pharisees, pride themselves upon their own righteousness, which in the sight of God is only as filthy rags (Isa. lxiv, 6) and can in no case entitle one to enter the kingdom (Matt. v, 20). The righteousness which is required by God must be absolutely perfect, an unbroken law, for "whosoever shall keep the whole law and yet offend in one point he is guilty of all" (Jas. ii, 10). The law is so holy and righteous that no sinful man can keep it, and it was never intended to give life, but to prove our guilt, shut our mouths and lead us to Christ, who is God's perfect righteousness and the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth.

There is no Saviour or salvation for a righteous man in the Bible—that is, for such as think themselves righteous—but only for sinners.

In connection with the murmuring of the Pharisees when our Lord called Matthew or Levi, the publican, and Levi made Him a feast in his own house, at which a great company of publicans and others were present, our Lord said: "They that are whole need not a physician, but they that are sick. I came not to call the righteous, but sinners, to repentance" (Luke v, 31, 32).

On another occasion He said to the chief priests and elders, "Verily I say unto you that the publicans and the harlots go into the kingdom of God before you" (Matt. xxi, 23, 31). To this day there are churchgoers and church members who, "being ignorant of God's righteousness and going about to establish their own righteousness, have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God" (Rom. x, 3).

It is indeed a fearful thing to be satisfied with oneself and have no conviction of sin. In the first part of our lesson today the Pharisee did not pray to God, did not ask God for anything, did not seem to need anything, but prayed with himself and told God what a good man he was and how much good he did and how thankful he was that he was not a bad man nor even like that publican. Truly he was well satisfied with his righteous self. The publican had no goodness to prove his righteousness, nothing good to say of himself, but he did have a consciousness of his own sinfulness, and from his heart he said, "God be merciful to me, a sinner." In the margin of the revised version it is, "God be propitiated to me, the sinner." Weymouth has it, "O God, be reconciled to me, sinner that I am." The Lord Jesus Christ, who reads all hearts, the only Saviour of sinners, the only Judge of all men, said that the publican went to his home justified.

I like the definition of justification which I learned in Sunday school when I was a boy, and, if I remember correctly, it read thus: "Justification is an act of God's free grace, wherein He pardoneth all our sins and accepteth us as righteous in His sight only for the righteousness of Christ, imputed unto us and received by faith alone."

In the second part of our lesson we have a rich publican who had a desire to see Jesus, and, though he did not seem to have the same conviction of sin as the poor publican, he, too, was welcomed and saved. He was a prominent man, chief among the publicans. He was not prominent as to his physical appearance, for he was little of stature. He was not what one might call dignified, for he ran and climbed up into a tree. His thought evidently was to see without being seen. How surprised beyond measure he must have been to see Jesus look up and to hear Him call him by name and to hear Him say, "Make haste and come down, for today I must abide at thy house" (verse 5).

Was this something exceeding abundantly above all that Zaccheus had ever thought to come his way, or was it the Saviour's recognition of a desire which He had actually seen in the heart of this man? (Eph. iii, 20; Ezek. xi, 5; Ps. cxiv, 19.) I cannot tell, but I do know that the "handfuls of purpose" which the Lord drops for those who seek Him and for those who seek to serve Him are truly wonderful (Ruth ii, 15, 16).

We do not wonder that Zaccheus made haste and came down and received Him joyfully (verse 6). Any one but a Pharisee would if he only understood what it meant. According to John 1, 12, Zaccheus thus became a child of God and according to 1 John ii, 12, had there and then the forgiveness of his sins—freely justified, as was the other publican. There is only one salvation and one way of salvation for rich or poor. It was foreshadowed in the atonement money of Israel, concerning which it was commanded, "The rich shall not give more and the poor shall not give less than half a shekel" (Ex. xxx, 11-15). That which Zaccheus said he did in verse 8 was part of the evidence that he had become a child of God, for, while no works of ours can obtain or help to obtain salvation, the good works must follow as a result (Eph. ii, 10; Tit. iii, 8). Weymouth translates: "Here and now I give. * * * I pledge myself to repay to him four times the amount."

TRAILING THE MOVIES

A Little Journey With the Player Folk in the Field.

Have you ever wondered just how moving pictures are taken?

Well, the summer days are here and the movies actors are all happy, for it means work out in the fields and beside the brooks. It is not all easy, for I remember seeing Pearl White sit for three hours in a hot Indian suit of leather under a hot broiling sun, waiting for a picture to be taken.

It might be well to tell just what this particular company was doing. Pathe Freres had sent their stock company into New Jersey to take an Indian picture. I shall never forget the day when the company left the restaurant and went past Mrs. McGinnis's house.

Little Mary McGinnis was playing in the yard and when she caught sight of Pearl White and the other actors and actresses in Indian costume, she ran into the house shouting:

"Murder! Murder! The Indians is coming!"

But to go back to what the company was doing.

Having left New York by automobile, the scene selected for the staging of the photo play was reached by nine o'clock in the morning, the "property man" having gone ahead with all the things necessary for staging the piece.

By the way, one of the "properties" was a burro which was used in a very important scene and the poor thing was not allowed to drink all day so that he would be sure to be thirsty when it was time for his act.

The moving picture stage differs from the ordinary stage in that it is set in certain boundaries and all the "action" takes place within certain lines. Everything that is done must convey some definite idea, for there are no words spoken.

Let us take a scene:

We have an Indian maiden who is visited by a miner and we wish to show that the girl hates the miner. He comes to her tent and asks for a drink of water. She gives it to him, his hand touches hers and he looks at her in such a way that the observer can see that he likes her. The look of disgust on her face tells the audience that she has no use for him.

The play is enacted just as though it was on the real stage, only there is very little conservation, the director who stands by the camera tell ths actors and actresses what they are to do and often a scene has to be gone over and over in order to make it perfect.

The moving picture camera never lies and what is done is faithfully recorded.

Let us take a love scene from this play which we are taking as an illustration. The plot in short is as follows:

A miner wishes to rob a rich, old Indian, who has a beautiful daughter who is loved by a young chief. In order to bring him in properly, the young brave discovers the miner talking to the Indian maid.

Now, we must have the Indian brave rescue the girl's father and save his money.

The scene shifts now from the quiet wigwam of the Indian girl to a cave where the old Indian has his money hidden. All the actors and actresses, together with all of the properties must be taken one mile or perhaps fifty miles in order to get a spot suitable for taking a cave picture.

The director must know where he can find on short notice a cave; a bridge that can be blown up; a rustic scene, or an ocean vessel which may be sunk at any moment, for real United States money.

Having found the cave, the exciting part of our picture commences, for in this scene, the old Indian is observed hiding his money and the miner steals along the rocks in order to rob him. The daughter, having found that her father has gone, goes after him and her lover goes after her, only to find that the Indian is being trailed by the miner.

Propped up on rocks, the faithful camera reels off the picture as the actors climb along the edge of the cliff and the faithful director shouts his orders.

Ah! the young brave rescues the Indian chief and—

It is getting late and this is the last scene of the picture. The moving picture people, tired, but happy, wend their way home to rest until another day. Their great reward comes when the picture comes out and is a success.

Here ends a day with the moving picture people. That picture you saw last night was, perhaps, taken in much the same way.

FLASHES FROM THE SCREEN

Persons unfamiliar with moving picture production little realize the enormous expense incurred in the staging of a film story, especially that variety which is known as costume stories. In one of the "Lucille Love," series a Chinese village erected at a cost of $5,000, was used in two scenes only.

"A Begger Prince of India" is the title of a stirring three-reel romantic adventure play featuring Walter Miller and Irene Wallace in the leads now in the course of production at the Victor studio at Coytesville, N. J.

Ethel Grandin is appearing for the first time in her life in a role that compels her to dress and act as a boy. And more than that, she has to put on a fake mustache, wear up-to date clothes and act just like a young society sport. It is a one-reel comedy-drama, entitled "Papa's Darling."

Upton Sinclair, writer of the world-wide famed book. "The Jungle," has recently returned from Bermuda to co-operate in the staging of his great story. Mr. Sinclair, himself, plays a part in the film version and has taken an active interest in the progress of the scenes.

Lew Dockstader, supported by Gail Kane, Lois Meredith and a big company of more than three hundred, will appear in motion pictures of an original Civil War story called "Dan," which is from the pen of Hal Reid.

Bess Meredyth, leading woman of the Joker company, is soon to appear in a series of women detective stories which are a combination of exhilarating comedy and gripping drama.

In the fire which wiped out the Imp branch in New York the other day it was found that most of the negatives which were destroyed were those made on the Pacific coast. Immediately an inventory was taken of the losses, it was telegraphed to the coast, and the entire force set to work to duplicate the missing pictures. Directors and companies are starting to work at seven o'clock in the morning and working far into the night in the hope that within a month's time they will have every negative lost duplicated and scheduled for release.

Because San Francisco Bay and the turbid water of the Golden Gate offer better opportunities for real thrill pictures, the entire company which is producing the "Lucille Love, Girl of Mystery," series under the direction of Francis Ford, have been taken to San Francisco.

Meeting Great People

I have often wondered what it must be like to meet great people. Without a moment's hesitation, one must think of "Our Mutual Girl," Miss Norma Phillips, of the Reliance Company, who has met more great people during the eighteen years of her life than any other man or woman or any boy or girl her age. The nice part of it is, that she takes us with her in an entertaining and instructive way.

For instance, how would it be possible for thousands and thousands of "movie fans" to meet the wonderful Dr. Katharine B. Davis, the first woman Commissioner of Correction of New York, or the famous Inez Milholland Boissevain, the great suffrage leader? Or Dr. Walter Damrosch, the great musician and founder of an American Conservatory of Music, beloved by all who know him? Or how could we ever expect to be introduced to the famous cartoonist Briggs, of the Tribune? And so on down the line. Dozens of celebrities could be named whom "movie" fans have met through the advantage of seeing on the screen "Our Mutual Girl," who pays her visit almost daily to the great and the near great of New York.

And how could we ever expect to be thrilled as we were on her visit to the U. S. S. Arkansas! The huge super-dreadnought was the most wonderful thing! Quite beyond all our expectations as to what a super-dreadnought might be. And weren't the officers cordial and lovely to "Margaret" and her aunt? And how about those great big "bullets" that had to be hoisted into the magazine? By no possible means known to mankind could thousands and thousands view such sights except by visiting with "Our Mutual Girl," as we do in the movies. It is not to be wondered at that the announcement of a new picture featuring "Our Mutual Girl" is hailed with delight by fans all over the United States, because we know it means a visit to some modern wonderland that could not be possible for us except in our favorite moving picture theatre. I shouldn't be a bit surprised if some day Margaret will visit Paris, London, Berlin, Vienna, Budapest, Rome, Venice, Madrid, Berne, Moscow and St. Petersburg, and then we will have an opportunity of taking an inexpensive trip abroad! That would be great! And while we are about it why not make it a globe-trotting event? To say the least, the heart's desire of many, many, many fans would be realized. But first, let's hope "Our Mutual Girl" will do America, with its wonderful cities, beautiful lakes, gigantic mountains, marvelous canyons, endless plains, and the great Yellowstone Park with its wondrous beauty. And then there is picturesque Alaska. But what's the use? We're dreamers, we fans are, but mayhaps our dreams might come true. In this day of wonders, one might expect most anything, especially of such an enterprising film company as the Mutual.

At any rate, it must be thrilling to meet such wonderful people; in fact, it is thrilling! We movie fans ought to know!

LETTER TO THE GIRLS OF WILMINGTON.

My dear girls:

Did you know that we had moved into our new home? We are not ready to open to the public yet but we are literally living under our own vine and fig tree. Don't you want to join us? We haave one room still unoccupied and we are anxiously awaiting some applications because "the more the merrier." Did you know that you can get your own breakfast and supper if you want to in the lovely kitchenette? I imagine we are going to try community living. Somehow I think it will be a lot of fun to see how much good food we can have with little money.

One girl told me the other day that she did not want to come and live with us because she was afraid that we would be preaching sermons to her all the time. That was so funny to me for any one to have such an idea of the folks that have to do with the Young Women's Christian Association. If you had heard the jolly laughter in my office yesterday when the ladies were making the curtains you would have known we were not a very sober set.

Another girl said: "I do not want to come because you have to get in at ten o'clock at night." You know I think any girl would be glad to get where one really cared whether she came in at all or not. I would feel dreadfully if I had to go into a house late at night and not be able to say "good night" to any one. I want to be where folks are interested in me—who will be interested and care whether I am sick and will bring me breakfast if I'm too ill to get out of bed in the morning. I want to be where some one cares whether I come home from my work tired. I want to be where some one takes a sisterly or motherly interest in me. It's hard in a way to be away from home, but if folks are good to you it makes it a whole lot easier.

I told her this and I also told her that there were to be no rules or regulations except those that govern any respectable home. Associations are becoming more and more self-governing homes. We have good times, and we do the right thing as nearly as we know how simply because it is right to do it and because we want to be self respecting.

Now we are going to try to help one another, and we are going to live just as nearly as possible as we would live in our own homes. There is no dearer word in the English language than "Home," unless it be "love." As Christ gave us commandment to love one another, we are going to make that the controlling motive of our living in our new home, that has been so sweetly and lovingly furnished for us.

To our older friends, I want to say that we need a piano and then I think our equipment will be complete at least for the summer. Some have said it was extravagant to have a piano. But do you know I've been thinking so strongly this morning about the agents of evil and I've been wondering if they ever think it extravagant to make their places of evil attractive. When we realize the truth of the startling statement that every year 50,000 girls are lost sight of in the U. S., we know that the agents of evil are sparing no money and no pains to ensnare our young women.

I am sorry that I've missed my calls from you. I am now living at 114 North Fourth Street. I can see you any morning and after four-thirty in the afternoon.

I want to thank the young women who answered my other letter. It was appreciated and was very helpful

Yours sincerely,
ELLA A. CLARK.

Soft, Fluffy Hair Aids Beauty and Personality

Girls and women of all ages want to be charming, beautiful and attractive—it's their birthright—but stringy, thin and lifeless hair destroys half the beauty of a pretty face.

If your hair is not beautiful, is falling out, streaky, full of dandruff, too dry, or if the scalp itches and burns, use Parisian Sage. Rub it well into the scalp. It will go right to the hair roots, nourish them, and stimulate the hair to grow strong and luxuriant. Parisian Sage removes dandruff with one application and cleanses the hair of dirt, dust and excessive oil. It will cool and invigorate the scalp and make the hair doubly beautiful.

Parisian Sage is a scientifically made preparation that gives the hair just what is needed to make it soft, fluffy, thick and gloriously radiant. It is delicately perfumed; is inexpensive, and can be had at all drug and toilet counters or from Robt. R. Bellamy.

The good roads sentiment continues to be active and aggressive in Brunswick. Hood, of Wayne county, to succeed Representative John M. Falson. Charles R. Thomas, of Craven, Hood's leading opponent, protests Hood's nomination, claiming that it disregarded the preferential primary which was at first resorted to to effect a nomination. The Week Locally

The Seashore hotel at Wrightsville Beach opened Monday, this being the first hotel at this popular resort to open its doors to the public for the summer of 1914.

The Grand Lodge of North Carolina, Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons, convened in special communication in the Masonic Temple Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock for the purpose of presenting a Past Grand Master's Jewel to Past Grand Master Chas. H. Robinson. Eight lodges were represented and there was an attendance of about 80 members.

May was the dryest month of which the local weather bureau has any record, only .10 of an inch of rain having fallen during the entire month. In May, 1911, there was only .28 of an inch, which was a close second. The records of the Wilmington office extend back to 1871 and the normal rainfall for May is four inches. In 1885 there was a rainfall of 8.58 inches, while the lowest with the exception of 1911, was 1.18 inches in 1886.

Strikingly original and surprisingly unique in its every feature was the entertainment given Thursday evening by the Senior class of the High School in their class day exercises. The production was entitled "The Passing Show of 1914," and the scene was placed in "The Royal Gardens of Tilestonia." This furnished the background for the presentation of the class history, prophecy, poem and other features that go to make up class day exercises.

Notwithstanding the fact that the health budget controversy overshadowed everything else at the weekly meeting of City Council Wednesday morning, a number of matters of some importance were transacted, chief among which was the introduction of a resolution providing for the improvement of Fourth street, north from the railroad bridge to the city limits. The resolution will come up for passage at the next meeting.

Report for the year ending May 31st, 1914, was made to City Council in weekly session by Superintendent of Streets John C. McAllister. The report reviews in detail the work accomplished by the street cleaning department during the past year. The report of the city sanitary department was also submitted by Mr. Jas. E. Holton, the superintendent, and after it had been read Councilman Merritt called attention to the fact that it showed that the work was being daily brought nearer a self supporting basis, averaging for the past nine months only $200 over the receipts.

Mr. S. D. Lucas, manager of the Southern Bell Telephone Company, states that one of the features that he and other officials of the company have been working on for some time has been that of installing more telephone pay stations in Wilmington. Application was made last month to the Atlantic Coast Line for permission to install two and possibly three pay stations, he stated, and while the negotiations have not yet been completed, it is expected that the deal will be consummated within the next few days.

One of the most remarkable public controversies in the history of Wilmington prevailing for the past week following the action of City Council in reducing the appropriation for the health department by something more than $5,000, came to an end Thursday afternoon when, at a special meeting attended by the Councilmen and the committee of 25 appointed at the citizens' mass meeting Monday night, as well as a number of interested citizens, Council by unanimous vote rescinded its former action and passed the health budget granting the full amount asked for by the Board of Health.

The first of the commencement exercises of the Wilmington graded schools was held Tuesday morning, this being the boys' declamation contest at the Union school. There were a large number of patrons and friends present. Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at the same school there was a declamation contest by the girls. The closing exercises of the Union school and the Isaac Bear Memorial school were held Thursday morning. That night the seniors of the High School had their class day exercises and Friday night there was the annual address at the Academy of Music by Mr. J. W. Bailey, of Raleigh.

The three members of the City Council who voted to shave the health budget for the coming year were urgently requested to suggest some plan satisfactory to them by which the difference between the city Fathers, the Board of Health and the Board of County Commissioners might be considered and definitely decided, in a formal resolution adopted by the County Commissioners at their regular monthly meeting Monday, after that body had directed the clerk to inform the City Council that the commissioners could not see their way clear to concur in the reductions in the budget of the Board of Health suggested by them.

Moved by a common impulse to stand together in a calm but firm determination in support of what they conceived to be a matter vital to the present and future welfare of the community, nearly 500 of the representative citizens of Wilmington assembled in a mass meeting at the court house Monday night and without a dissenting voice adopted a resolution calling upon City Council to reconsider its action in reducing the budget for the health department for the ensuing year, and to pass the budget as approved by the Board of Health and recommended by the Board of County Commissioners. The chairman of the meeting was empowered to appoint a standing committee of 25 to appear before City Council immediately and prosecute the matter to the desired end, even to seeking relief in the courts if necessary.

With the Man in The Street

More Evidence—The Man in the Street ventured the assertion that marriage to a woman meant more than it did to a man, and the female population of the city arose and with one acclaim denounced his reasoning and philosophy. The following, written by a woman and appearing in a recent issue of The Mothers' Magazine, it corroborative of what he said:

"Women have the marrying habit; men do not. This is not strange, for generation of girls have been taught that every woman should be married, and that to remain unwed is a disgrace. Being a "married woman" has been a sort of boast of superiority on the part of wives. Naturally, because their mothers and almost every other person of their own sex put a great deal of emphasis on the desirability of being married, and none at all on the desirability, which sometimes exists, of remaining unmarried, girls looked on marriage as the goal of ambition, and bent their whole energies to getting husbands.

"Rather than endure the stigma of being "old maids," they took the first man who gave them a chance. Their object was not love, not a husband, but simply to acquire the status, privileges, and deference which they had been taught were denied to all of their sex except the"married woman."

"The same mothers who fairly drive their daughters to marry are singularly reluctant to see their sons wed. The mother who is employing all the arts and craft of the chase to entrap some other woman's son for her daughter's husband will weep at the announcement that the other woman's daughter has shackled her son.

Poor Girlies—With the opening of the summer season at Wrightsville Beach, the Man in the Street begs leave to shed a tear on behalf of the girls of Wilmington, or at least a majority of them, for now indeed is the Summer of their discontent arrived.

For the fact that Wilmington has, just at her door, what is probably the most popular summer resort between Atlantic City and Palm Beach is one that places the Wilmington damosel in a rather trying position.

All through the long winter the local swains play cavalier to her and she goes to shows, entertains callers galore, is an exceedingly popular miss and has the time of her sweet young life.

But with the month of June, just when her spirits are soaring with the gladsome season, the beach opens, and six or seven States begin pouring their fairest and most attractive daughters into the cottages and hotels on Wrightsville. And friend local lad, who has danced at the beck and call of some Wilmington miss all through the winter, and perchance taken not a few polite snubs at her dainty hands, welcomes the opportunity to bask in the smiles of the summer girl from elsewhere, and hies him off to the beach in solitary glory each evening, knowing that he will find as many fair partners as he desires already there. It would be mean to mention in this connection that he saves 35 cents car fare by this method.

And friends Wilmington damosel goes to the picture show with father or whiles him out of the necessary car fare to the beach for herself and younger brother, and goes down and tangoes with whosoever may come her way.

Of course its she has an enjoyable time, but some of the pleasure is detracted in watching Percival doing the dip with some yellow haired Georgia peach who for all she knows may be a clerk in some five and ten cent store in Atlanta.

A Friend of Mankind—Mr. E. C. Wooten, traveling representative of the Star is a friend of mankind. Not for the world would he say a word or do anything that would hurt the most harmless of God's creatures. He believes in preaching the gospel of good cheer and as he visits the various towns in this section he carries with him a halo of optimism that is as refreshing as an afternoon shower on a dry summer day. To him is given the privilege of meeting face to face the readers of this paper for whom those in the office work but do not know personally.

Mr. Wooten is first, last and all the time a man of heart, of sympathy and of soul. Not for the dollars he makes, does he work, but for the good he can do, for the sake of the friends he makes, for the devoted family he has at home. He is proud of his family, too, but next to them comes the subscribers of the Star. He believes in them and with good reason.

"I went to a home the other day," said he last week, upon his return to the office after a hard trip up the country where it was dry and dusty, "and there I found the father sick in bed and his young son crippled. I went to collect a bill for the Star but when I found the family so sorely afflicted I couldn't ask them to pay then, so I stopped and talked with the husband and father a while and tried to cheer him up, for he was very much discouraged. I told him not to mind about the bill for it would be alright. I tried to make him understand that while life is full of trouble and sorrow it is not all sadness and that the darkest hour is just before the dawn of the new born day.

"And I was glad that I could encourage him and he seemed to appreciate it. And it pays too for when that man gets up again I know he will pay the bill. He is an honest man and will do the right thing."

An Apostle of the Simple Life—"I am a believer in the simple life," said Mr. Mike Cronly, the genial office deputy in Sheriff Cowan's office, the other night as he walked along Front street, smoking his pipe contentedly. With a greeting here and there for a passing friend, he wended his way to the postoffice, stopping occasionally to pass the time of day with an old acquaintance.

"And do you know," said he as soon as he had time to continue the conversation, "that I have come to the conclusion that that is the only kind of life to live. None of your frills and furbelows for me. I want to live and enjoy life and I think that there is too little time to waste in trying to keep up with style.

"Now take the matter of eating for instance. Some people must have their dinners served up in style with various courses and different dishes and all that kind of thing. But that never appealed to me. I had rather sit down to the table and have North Carolina ham or New Hanover chicken with a few native vegetables and some bread than to have anything that your skilled chef can prepare. When I eat I want to enjoy the rations and to do that I want it served up as simply as possible.

"Once upon a time I remember that I was in New York and when I ordered the same things at the hotel that I get at home a friend who was with me was much surprised for he thought that since I was in the metropolis I ought to get something that I wasn't used to. But I told him that what I had been eating was good enough for me and I saw no reason for changing simply because I was in New York.

"And speaking of eating," he continued reminiscently, "if you really want to get a good dinner you ought to go to the some of our good country people who have nature's best. It is there that you get food that is fit for a king. And I ought to know for I remember very pleasantly my visits to friends here and there."

How the Woodcock Fools the Worm—The drought that has prevailed for the past several weeks has called forth many yarns. A man who boasts proudly of the fact that he was reared in the country but has never progressed further than Wilmington says that woodcocks have a way when it is extremely dry and food is scarce of making worms come to the top of the ground by selecting a fertile spot and then dancing a jig for five minutes or more. Mr. Worm down beneath the dark confines of earth has no way of knowing when it rains, except by the patter of the rain drops. Thinking that the constant pounding of the woodcock's feet are rain drops, he speedily finds his way to the top of the ground. Then he is gobbled up. No, This story has no moral.

Modern Decadence—Much has been written about the decadent intrusion of the modern dance craze, and its widespread popularity, with resultant upheavals in religious bodies and puritanical family circles, but the worst is yet to come if a tip the Man in the Street has turns out to be correct.

For he has been advised that on the occasion of the annual police outing to Carolina Beach this month, precedent is to be smashed over the head with the hammer of progress, and the old square dance—for years the favorite of Wilmington's finest—is to give way in place of first honor to the tango and the maxixe.

Shades of the past! What a comedown is this? In years gone by even the stately waltz was frowned upon by the minions of the law, and last year they turned down an invitation to hold their annual picnic at Lumina because its highly polished floor was not adapted to the successful evolution of the classic figures of the square dance.

But it is hinted that even now Captain Woolard and Sergeants "Brodie" Howell and "Peter Jackson" Grimsley are secretly instructing themselves in the acrobatic intricacies of devilish dip; that Marcus Gray is fondly counting on carrying off first honor with the Castle Walk, while "Ruben" George and Joe Lane have invented a new one, which they will dedicate on the occasion as the patrolman's prance.

Truly, wonders never cease, and now is come the greatest of them all.

CHALONER LOST APPEAL.

Man Adjudged Insane in New York and Lived in Virginia, in Court.

New York, June 5.—John Armstrong Chaloner, who fled to Virginia and made his home there after he was declared insane by the courts of New York State, lost today on appeal his suit for the restoration of his rights in this commonwealth. The United States Circuit Court of Appeals upheld Federal Judge Holt in dismissing the action brought by Chaloner to recover damages against Thomas T. Sherman, who was appointed a committee for Chaloner in 1901, for refusal to turn over the plaintiff's property.

The court did not consider the question of Chaloner's sanity, but agreed with Judge Holt that the Federal district court was without jurisdiction and that if Chalenor had recovered his reason upon presentation of proof to the State Supreme court, the proceedings adjudging him an incompetent would be annulled.

DAWSON'S BACK BROKEN.

Man Hurt in Automobile Race is Injured Internally It is Feared.

Indianapolis, June 5.—An X-ray examination of Joe Dawson, the race driver injured in the 500-mile race at the speedway hre May 30th, today showed that he has five broken vertebrae. His physicians today declared internal injuries are more to be feared that the broken back, but that he has a chance to recover.

The Mexican delegates at Niagara announced that General Huerta is prepared to withdraw from the government on condition that Mexico shall be politically pacified. Ammunition for the Mexican Constitutionalists left New York for Tampico. The mediation conference at Niagara was deadlocked for several days over the question of admitting Constitutionalist representation.

COTTON CLOSED STEADY

Considerable Scattering Liquidation Caused by Weather Advices From Southwest.

New York, June 6.—The failure of today's weather advices to strengthen yesterday's privae predictions of rain in the Southwest over Sunday evidently caused considerable scattering liquidation at the opening of today's cotton market. Offerings, however, were not particularly heavy or aggressive, and were enough taken to cause partial rallies, with the close steady at a net loss of only 1 to 3 points.

First prices were steady at an advance of one point to a decline of three points, the new crop being generally 1 to 3 points lower and the general list sold 5 to 6 points down during the first few minutes.

There was not agreat deal of cotton for sale at the decline and the market later rallied on covering of shorts, or a renewal of bull support. Weather conditions in the Eastern belt were considered more favorable but the rally from the low point was encouraged by reports that boll weevils were numerous in Western, South western and Central Alabama counties, while support may also have been inspired by a feeling that it will require more than a temporary spell of good weather to make up for the poor start of the crop.

Owing to the continued holiday there were no cables from Liverpool and there seemed to be comaratively few foreign orders around the ring, while New Orleans and the south were credited with trading both ways, with scattering local traders showing a disposition to even up their accounts for over the week end.

Reports from the drygoods trade indicated increasing mill curtailment in New England, but there were further reports of an increasing demand for goods and the weekly reviews of the more prominent Western distributors read favorable as to business in the interior.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON MARKET

Weather Market in Southern City—Fear of Rain in Texas Caused Recovery in Price.

New Orleans, June 6.—It was a weather market today on the cotton exchange and while a favorable map caused selling in the early part of the session and a decline of 5 to 6 points on the most active months, fear of rains in Texas over Sunday proved the stronger influence and the market recovered. The best prices of the day were late in the session when the market stood two points up to one point down compared with yesterday's final prices. The close was at a net loss of two points.

The trade was at first inclined to be bearish on weather conditions because of the dry weather in the West and the showers in the East. The area of low pressure to the Northwest of the delta, however, caused uneasiness and fear that they would bring rain to the western belt over Sunday. This was intensified during the morning by the report of scattered showers in Texas. During the greater part of the morning offerings were quickly obsorbed.

WEEKLY DRY GOODS MARKET.

Cotton Goods Markets Have Broadened Steadily Through the Week.

New York, June 6.—Cotton goods markets have broadened steadily throughout the week and prices have advanced. The buying has been done by converters, bleachers, printers, jobbers, and bag manufacturers and engagements have been made which will carry the mills moderately well through the summer of grain and brown goods. Print cloth prices are up 1-8c a yard and sheetings are firmer. Prices have been named on shirtings, chambray on the same level as a year ago, 6 1-2c for 32-inch goods, while bleached madras has been priced at 6 3-4c, 1-4c advance. Business on these lines is up to the volume of last year. Bleached goods are in better call from the manufacturing trades. Denims and tickings are comfortably under order for the next two months in the largest mills. Wide sheetings, pillow tubings, sheets and pillow cases, and other domestics are in better demand. Wash goods sales during the week were active, the best selling cloths being printed fancies in sheer structions. Yarns are still quiet and prices are low. There has been a better spot demand for underwear and hosiery and preparations are under way for openings for spring, 1915. Prices on cotton goods are as follows:

Print cloths 28-inch 64x64s, 3 3-4c nominal; 64x60s, 3 1-2; 38 1-2-inch 64x64s, 5 1-4; sheetings Southern standards 8; denims 9 ounce 14; tickings 8 ounce 13 1-2; prints 5 1-4; staple ginghams 6 1-4; dress ginghams 9 3-4c.

SUDDEN STRENGTH IN STOCKS

After Several Days of Inactivity Market Suddenly Became Strong and Active.

New York, June 6.—After several days of inactivity the stock market today suddenly became active and strong. Shares of the Eastern railroads led the advance. As it is these roads which are concerned in the freight rate case, the upturn was associated with Washington reports that a decision was forthcoming shortly.

Wall Street houses received advices from Washington that Chairman Harlan, of the Inter-State Commerce Commission was hurrying to complete the text of the decision and that it might be made known within a week. Another report was that the decision might come out in a day or two.

Another factor in the upturn was the news from Washington that the Senate committee on inter-State commerce might not report at this session two of the administration's three bills dealing with corporations which yesterday passed the House.

At the close there were substantial gains in many instances. American stocks in London again were inclined to sag.

All the leaders were depressed at the outset, although in most cases recessions were slight. Lehigh Valley once more was particularly heavy. The market quickly stiffened, however, absorbing moderate offerings from London without difficulty. Despite the recent exportation of gold, the bank statement showed a gain in cash of $5,000,000, which was somewhat larger than had been expected.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales par value, $1,054,000. United States 2s registered declined 1-4 on call on the week.

AN UNJUST REBUKE

The following editorial from the Army and Navy register, which is considered rather as the official organ of the Army and the Navy, will be of interest to many readers of The Star, especially those of Southport and Fort Caswell and those who are friends and admirers of Judge Oliver H. Allen, of the Superior court bench:

There have been, unfortunately, so many instances when it was necessary to remonstrate against the decision or expression of judges and magistrates concerning the military-naval personnel, that it is gratifying to note that there is now and then the occasion for saying something of a less fault-finding character. In the state superior court at Southport, N. C., Judge O. H. Allen had occasion recently to deal with some enlisted men of the Army stationed at Fort Caswell, N. C., He was quoted as making the statement to the effect that the soldiers "are a detriment to the community." This led to a letter which has been published in a New York service contemporary from a soldier severely attacking Judge Allen. It would seem to have been fair to the court in this instance to have ascertained the facts, since the writer of the letter asks for information and does not seem to be sure of the grounds upon which he makes an attack that is not only directed against the judge but embraces the citizens of Southport, to whom an indirect reference is made by the inquiry "whoever heard of a dog biting the hand that feeds him?" by which it is intended to signify that "three-quarters of the town is maintained from the profits made directly or indirectly from the patronage of the members of the garrison."

In a communication received from Judge Allen, he says: "I had three soldiers before me at one term of court. One had been found drunk in a private house in the night time and had been indicted for burglary and was allowed to plead guilty to a lesser offense and give bond for good behavior; another was indicted for selling whiskey unlawfully and was acquitted, but his own statement made a bad showing for him. The third was indicted for attempting to intimidate an officer. I discharged the last named after talking to him kindly on account of his youthful appearance, for which action he thanked me and even waited until court adjourned and again expressed his appreciation. On that occasion I made some remarks about the conduct of the soldiers who were allowed to go to Southport and get the whiskey ordered for delivery to them there when they were not allowed to receive it at Fort Caswell. My intention was to call the attention of the officers to the condition that they might correct the evil, or rather I suggested that their attention be called to it." Judge Allen's letter was accompanied by a communication from Mr. C. E. Taylor, an attorney-at-law at Southport, who represented the soldiers and who pronounced as "unwise" the publication of the critic's letter, remarking that there was nothing in any of the statements of the court which justified the attack made upon the judge by the soldier.

The incident is mainly interesting for the reason that it illustrates the care with which criticism should be directed upon the courts. The average newspaper reports of statements made by a judge may very properly and safely be subjected to suspicion if there is in them anything unreasonable or improper; at least, on the theory that a man with intelligence enough to conduct a court may also be expected to possess enough common sense and knowledge of affairs in general, and perhaps of the Army and Navy in particular, to refrain from indulging in excessive comment or in remarks which can be construed as uncomplimentary. The chief offenders in that direction, so far as the courts are concerned, have been those who unwittingly, rather than wilfully, "sentenced" youthful offenders to terms of enlistment in the military-naval establishment. In nearly every instance when their attention was called to this incongruity and injustice to the service there have been prompt amends. The present case furnishes an example of criticism entirely misplaced, and it would be well for those of excitable temperament to control their speech or their written word until they can ascertain the facts. An enlisted man may not be counted as entirely to blame when his enthusiasm for the service carries him beyond the bounds of dignified rejoinder. But in no such blameless category can be placed a service journal which publishes an attack of this sort and from such a source without ascertaining whether that attack is merited. In this particular instance it would have taken little trouble to have found out whether the judge in North Carolina was an offender in any particular on account of his utterances from the bench. If he were, the letter from the soldier might very well have been supplemented by something more pertinent and dignified than that in which the soldier indulged and that which the service journal printed. Too much care can not be exercised by editors and publishers in printing attacks which may have no incentive or justification.

VANITIE TURNS THE TABLES ON RESOLUTE

Bronze Yacht Won the Fourth Trial Race.

Both Cornelius Vanderbilt and J. P. Morgan Were on the Losing Craft.—Vanitie Won by Five Minutes, 52 Seconds.

Rye, N. Y., June 6.—The bronze yacht Vanitie turned the tables on her rival, the Resolute, in the fourth Long Island Sound race sailed today, winning by five minutes, 52 seconds in elapsed time.

As the Vanitie gives the Resolute an estimated allowance over the 29 3-4 miles course of three minutes and 12 seconds the margin of the Gardner boat over the Herreshoff creation was believed to have been two minutes and 40 seconds.

Both Cornelius Vanderbilt and J. P. Morgan, of the Resolute syndicate, were on board the sloop today and sailed the course with her in her defeat.

The race was a fairer test than Tuesday's contest, which was regarded as more or less of a fluke, and which the Vanitie won by 16 minutes and 48 seconds.

Both yachts were slow in starting and both were handicapped. Fifteen minutes after the start on the first leg the Vanitie went by the Resolute. The lead increased until the fourth leg, when the Resolute recovered two minutes.

After passing the Resolute on the first leg the Vanitie luffed around the first mark three minutes and 19 seconds to the good. The Vanitie increased her lead to six minutes and 14 seconds at the second mark. The Resolute picked up two minutes after passing the third mark. At the fifth mark the Vanitie was five minutes and 18 seconds to the good. On the last leg the Vanitie pulled away still further and sped across the finish line a consistent winner.

There will be three open sea contests next week off Sandy Hook.

LARGE LONDON BANK SUSPENDS BUSINESS

Grenfell's first wife, is reported among the heavy losers.

The firm recently issued a notice that Grenfell had not been connected therewith since February 17th.

Affairs of tae bank were largely involved with those of the Canadian Agency, Ltd., controlled by Grenfell, which had been endeavoring to purchase a controlling interest in the Grand Trunk Railway. When those securities depreciated, obligations created by the purchase of large quantities of them were taken over by a strong group of financial houses in order to protect the many stock exchange firms involved.

The bank is believed, however, to be entirely solvent. The total of the deposits is understood to have been greatly diminished in the past month and the amount outstanding is believed to be about $1,250,000.

Further failures in connection with this one are not expected.

Members of Grenfell's family are coming to his assistance in the settlement of his affairs.

W. B. SNOW FOR SENATE.

Nominated in Wake Primary, in Which Few Participated.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Raleigh, N. C., June 6.—Scarcely half of the Democratic strength of the county participated in the Wake county legalized primaries for legislative officers today, the Republicans making no move to nominate candidates at all. W. B. Snow defeated J. C. Little, present Senator, for the State Senate.

Nominees for the lower House are Clyde Douglass, Raleigh; D. B. Harrison, Marks Creek township, and A. T. Smith, of Panther Branch.

The primaries for county officers will be held August 29th.

Colored Boy Arrested.

John Brandt, a young colored boy, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Constable Davis on a charge of stealing $29 from James Bell, colored, in East Wilmington. In default of a $100 bond he went to jail. He was living with Bell and is said to have gone into his trunk and got the money. He admitted getting the money and implicated another colored boy in the matter also. He has just completed a term on the county farm.

THE RAMBLER.

(By T. W. C.)

Avoid unkind criticism—even if you have to keep your mouth shut.

When you can work constantly side by side with another, without a break in friendship—begin to feel that you are successful.

True success is at the end of a life marked by service to humanity. Years filled with self-gratification spell failure and should be avoided as the plague.

Team work is commendable. Determine to co-operate and assist every worthy movement. Criticism and fault-finding is usually the disposition of the "do-nothing" class.

Nervous prostration is not the result of overwork—pushing your business, but it is rather the sequence to over-worry—the natural result of being pushed by your business.

Give the world a little more love and a little more patience. Less worship of the past and less attention to the chronic knocker. More determined faith in the present and larger hope for the future. Deeper confidence in the fellow man and the result will be a more glorious today and still greater tomorrow.

Great is the man with hands to work, a brain to think, and a heart to love. Train the working hands; equip the thinking orain; and cultivate the loving heart—if it is real greatness you seek. Safe citizenship depends upon employed, thinking men of tender heart—tender toward mankind. Brotherhood is a good word.
